EMBARGO ON ARMS IS LIFTED IN FACT.

President Signs an "Enabling Act" for the Benefit of the Rebels.

White House Confesses at Last that Its Whole Course to Date Has Been to Prevent the Very Thing It Now Desires South of the Border, Namely, Well Established Constitutional Government.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—President Wilson, by an executive order dated today and made public at the White House tonight, removed all restrictions against exportation of munitions of war into Mexico from the United States, placing the contending elements on a basis of equality with respect to the purchase of arms and supplies in this country.

The executive order emphasizes that it is the desire of the United States to be in the same position of neutrality toward the contending factions in Mexico as are the powers.

WILSON'S STATEMENT.

Accompanying the order, the White House issued the following statement of explanation:

"The executive order under which the exportation of arms and ammunition into Mexico is forbidden was a departure from the accepted practices of neutrality—a departure from those practices under a well-considered joint resolution of Congress—determined upon in circumstances which have now ceased to exist. It was intended to discourage incipient revolts against the constituted authorities of Mexico. Since that order and the circumstances of the case have undergone

SMUGGLERS TURN ON WILSON FOR BUSTING THEIR TRUST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NOGALLES (Ariz.) Feb. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The proclamation of President Wilson was a little late today to help the smugglers who have been supplying arms to the Mexican rebels across the border, but they had wind that it was coming. They worked unhindered today all along the line. The few guards who are and have been on duty also had wind of the fact that the President had finally made up his mind to lift the embargo on arms and ammunition to the rebels so they did not put themselves in the way of a good trade. Nor did any of the other officials whose duties may or may not require them to nab smugglers go out of their way to ascertain whether or not the neutrality of the United States was being violated. It is said that more arms and ammunition went across today than on any day in the past two months.

Apprehensive.

MEXICO FEARS UNITED STATES WILL AID REBELS FINANCIALLY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 3.—Mexico holds official positions and friends of the administration generally profess not to believe that President Wilson has improved materially the position of the rebels by lifting the embargo on arms and ammunition, but the fear that financial assistance might also be accorded them was frankly expressed tonight by Querido Moheno, the Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Although there is no disposition to confuse President Wilson's act as recognition of the belligerency of the rebels, those at the National Palace asserted tonight that it would have virtually the same effect. The fact that the removal of the embargo permits the free importation of arms from the United States to either faction brings from the officials here a sneer and they point out that the proximity of the rebels to the United States and the admitted impoverishment of the Federal government leaves no doubt as to which side will be the greater beneficiary.

BELIEF OF HUERTA. President Huerta, however, said a few days ago that the lifting of the embargo would not improve the rebels' position greatly, because already in his opinion they were getting into the country across the international boundary, all the guns and ammunition they were able to pay for in spite of the apparent efforts of the American War Department to prevent the smuggling. He added that money was the thing the rebels needed more than anything else and this they could not get.

He appears to believe this situation will continue and Senator Moheno has expressed the same opinion, although with less assurance.

Others not so close to the President believe that the rebels will now be able to obtain the money necessary to enable them to make a swift campaign against the capital. They point out that banking-houses and capitalists in general probably will regard a loan made to the rebels under the new conditions as an excellent business proposition subject to little risk.

News that President Wilson intended to raise the embargo had been no secret at the American Embassy for several days, nor in President Huerta's office. But the receipt of cablegrams stating it was an accomplished fact caused a slight stir in both offices and came as a shock to that

ASIATIC EXCLUSIONISTS EFFECTUALLY SQUELCHED

But a New Immigration Law Has Been Decided on by Congress.

By an Overwhelming Vote the Cry of Protest on the Part of Hoodwinked California Members Is Smothered—Republican Leader Mann Turns Tide Against Bill by Plan to Put Country Above Party Interest.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Asiatic exclusion agitation was quieted temporarily at least in the House after a heated debate today that brought both Republican and Democratic leaders to the floor with pleas for calmness and deliberation. By overwhelming votes the House stripped from the immigration bill under consideration all amendments which would have placed a bar against Asiatic immigration.

The action was taken after Republican Leader Mann, Representative Sherley of Kentucky and other leaders made a vigorous fight to overcome the sentiment which last night expressed itself by a vote of 114 to 99 in favor of the perfecting of an amendment to exclude Mongolians, Malays and negroes. The speakers insisted there should be no Asiatic action that might embarrass the State Department in its relations with Japan.

The House was surcharged with excitement when it met and Representative Burnett, in charge of the immigration bill, forced the attendance of a quorum. The House then rushed action, Representative Raker of California presenting a substitute for a pending drastic exclusion amendment presented by Representative Haynes. The debate became heated, the Californians differing as to details, but both manifesting certainty that the amendment would be accepted in some form.

The House was in confusion, with half a dozen members vociferously demanding an opportunity to be heard, when the tide was turned by Representative Mann, who from the center of the chamber spoke in a grave, low voice.

"I have been long enough in this House, I hope, to place the country above party," he said. "I do not believe any of these amendments should be adopted at this time. Dealing with our foreign affairs is a subject of delicacy at best. While I do not have the greatest pride in the present State Department, I feel that in conducting our relations with foreign countries, I am bound to rely in the first instance, at least, upon the State Department. If they cannot execute the difficulties of the situation through diplomatic negotiations it is time enough then for Congress to act by specific legislation."

"I am not prepared to invite war with Japan or any other country, although if that war should come as a result of any legislation I would not shrink from it."

As the House listened in a hush of silence, Representative Mann turned to the Republican side.

"I think now is the time for us to be cool and collected," he warned, "not to be carried off our feet because we think, perchance, we can play politics at the expense of the Democratic side of the House. We owe an allegiance to our country above our party."

Shouts of approval from both Democrats and Republicans drowned the speaker.

"We represent the entire country and we ought to protect at this time even California against herself," he said.

Disclosures made here and elsewhere along the border today show that the smuggling has not been confined alone to the "Big Hole" that extends from San Diego in California to Yuma in Arizona. The smuggling has been going on day and night all along the border of Arizona, New Mexico and Texas. Army men have done what they could to prevent the illicit business, and now that the "cost is out of the bag," it is freely related that despite reports to Washington to the effect that the disposition of the American forces along the border was wholly inadequate to prevent smuggling of munitions of war to Mexican rebels, no action was ever taken by any of the Washington departments and no move was made by any of the Washington authorities to help out of their dilemma army officers who, on the one hand, were ordered to uphold neutrality and who, on the other hand, were

Rebel Leader Overjoyed at Lifting Arms Embargo.

Large Orders Already Placed in the United States.

Treasury Well Supplied With Funds for Purchases.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

JUAREZ (Mex.) Feb. 3.—"The Mexican war will not last much longer."

So commented Gen. Francisco Villa and other rebel leaders on the announcement today from Washington that President Wilson had lifted the embargo against the shipment of arms and ammunition into Mexico. Gen. Villa was confident that his ability to procure unlimited arms would multiply the rebel victories, and just as confident that the news from Washington would discourage and demoralize the Federal troops so that a speedy termination of the internal strife among Mexicans was in sight.

Half the strength of the Federal forces, Villa said, depended upon their ability to obtain arms from foreign countries, while the rebellion along the ports they controlled along the United States border, was denied this privilege. Smuggling had never brought satisfactory results, he said, and the rebels heretofore had to capture their weapons from the Federal forces as was done at Ojinaga.

The immediate effect of the lifting of the embargo, it was admitted, would be the ordering of great quantities of ammunition, cannon and modern rapid-fire pieces. Negotiations already had been opened with manufacturers of arms in the United States for the purchase of supplies in the event the embargo be lifted. The rebels said they were supplied with funds to make purchases. Nothing other than the resignation of Huerta or the restoration of the republic by the United States could have caused more joy to Gen. Villa. Had the action been taken a few months ago, he said, the war probably would have been over by now. As it is, he thought a few months would witness the restoration of constitutional government throughout the republic.

The latest development will cause no change in the rebel plans to attack the Federal army at Torreon, except that, if possible, more field pieces will be sent to open the siege. Gen. Villa himself may be delayed here to purchase more ammunition.

Next to learning about the lifting of the embargo, the rebels were anxious to have the restoration of the republic. They thought the information would result in demoralizing the Federal forces and even might cause them to evacuate their city at the opening of the attack. Gen. Villa believed the news would be withheld from them.

"Once more we have proof that the United States is the greatest friend the Mexican people have," said Gen. Villa.

This latest act of friendship will do more than anything else to bind the two countries together, and I predict that when the revolution is ended, which it soon will be, Mexico and the United States will be more closely allied than ever before."

On the American side, the customs officials, Department of Justice and United States Marshal's staff will be relieved of much responsibility and extra work by the lifting of the embargo. It will also relieve the army of much work, but United States border patrol troops will be stationed along the international line, according to Gen. Hugh L. Scott.

United States Consul at Ensenada Demands That Party Be Turned Over to Him.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

SAN DIEGO (Cal.) Feb. 3.—At the request of Claude Guyant, United States Consul at Ensenada, Mex., Robert W. Harwood, the Oakland (Cal.) newspaperman, and his wife, Mrs. Harwood, and C. E. Chapman, the three Americans who were arrested by the Mexican Federal authorities at Tia Juana last week, have been turned over to him and will be brought tonight or tomorrow morning to San Diego on the Mexican steamer Victoria. They will reach here Wednesday morning, when they will be turned over to the United States customs authorities for investigation.

Chapman, who arrived in Ensenada yesterday with Harwood and Miller, is believed to be the American who with two Italians and a negro was captured by the Mexicans and whose whereabouts has been a mystery for several days. He was one of the Harwood party, and was picked up by the Federal troops after they had left Tia Juana with Harwood and Miller. Federal rurales are still scouring the hills south of Garcia and Tecate, arrested several of the Harwood party, for other members of the Harwood party, but have been unable to make any captures.

Mexico.

A radical change. There is now no constitutional government in Mexico, and the existence of this order hinders and delays the very thing the government of the United States is now insisting upon: namely, that Mexico shall be left free to settle her own affairs and as soon as possible put them upon a constitutional footing by her own force and counsel. The order is therefore rescinded.

EMBASSIES NOTIFIED. American embassies and legations abroad were instructed last Saturday to inform foreign governments of the decision. Similarly, Secretary Bryan yesterday informed members of the diplomatic corps here. This was in line with the policy announced at the beginning of the present administration of keeping the nations of the world informed of the developments in the Mexican policy of this government.

VIEWPOINT. The administration viewpoint on the action taken today, as gathered from those familiar with the President's attitude, may be summed up as follows:

"One outside Mexico can now accommodate her affairs. The withdrawal of all moral or material support from without is the indispensable first step to a solution from within. From many sources which it deems trustworthy the government of the United States has learned that there is a more hopeful prospect of peace, of the security of property, and of the early payment of foreign obligations if Mexico is left to the forces now within the country than there is if there is a mere change of personnel were effected at Mexico City.

"There are no influences at Mexico City that can be counted on to do anything more than to perpetuate and strengthen the selfish oligarchical and military interests which it is clear the rest of the country can be made to endure only by constant warfare and a pitiless harrying of the north. The President is so fully convinced of this that, after months of careful study of the situation at close range, he no longer feels justified in maintaining an irregular position as regards the conflicting parties in the matter of neutrality.

"The intent is, therefore, to remove the inhibition on the exportation of arms and ammunition from Mexico to the United States. Settlement by civil war carried to its bitter end, has been the only result, but it must come now whether we wish it or not unless some outside power is to undertake to sweep Mexico with its sword and then to end, which would be the mere beginning of a still more difficult problem."

"By removing the inhibition on the exportation of arms and ammunition into Mexico, the government of the United States is not, except to put itself in the same position as other nations whose subjects have all along been at liberty to deal as they pleased with Mexico."

"The circumstance that Mexico is for financial obligations creates no novel or exceptional international rights, and she will be the sooner able to meet her obligations and resume her full international responsibility if she is left to determine her own affairs, first by domestic force and then by domestic counsel."

SHIPMENT OF ARMS.

Shipment of arms and ammunition from the United States into Mexico has been one of the principal sources of American influence in the Mexican situation and has been the storm center of the revolution since November 1910.

It was charged by the Diaz government that the revolution was being waged by Madero was sustained by arms purchased in the United States. President Taft, however, refused to permit the exportation of arms to Mexico to enforce neutrality, but notwithstanding this, the Madero revolution was quickly successful.

The border patrol of several thousand troops has since been maintained chiefly to prevent smuggling of arms. The United States was confronted in the spring of 1911 with another revolutionary outbreak, this time by Orozco against the Madero government, which had been forced to resign. Again the United States took the position of assisting the regular constituted government, but President Taft refused to permit the exportation of arms to Mexico to enforce neutrality, but notwithstanding this, the Madero revolution was quickly successful.

JOINT RESOLUTIONS. Accordingly, a joint resolution was passed on March 14, 1912, by Congress, providing:

"That whenever the President shall find that the conditions of domestic violence exist which are promoted by the use of arms or munitions of war procured from the United States, he shall make proclamation thereof, it shall be unlawful to export, except under such limitations and conditions as the President may prescribe, any arms or munitions of war from any place in the United States to such country unless the same be ordered by the President or by Congress."

TEXT OF PROCLAMATION LIFTING EMBARGO ON ARMS.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Following is the text of Wilson's proclamation lifting the embargo on shipment of arms into Mexico:

"Whereas, by a proclamation of the President, issued on March 14, 1912, under a joint resolution of Congress approved by the President on the same day, it was declared that there existed in Mexico conditions of domestic violence which were promoted by the use of arms or munitions of war procured from the United States.

"And, whereas, by the joint resolution above mentioned, it thereupon became unlawful to export arms or munitions of war to Mexico except under such limitations and exceptions as the President should prescribe;

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, hereby declare and proclaim that, as the conditions on which the proclamation of March 14, 1912, was based have essentially changed, and as it is desirable to place the United States with reference to the exportation of arms or munitions of war to Mexico in the same position as other powers, the said proclamation is hereby revoked."

ident Wilson was inaugurated. From then until last August the same policy was pursued. The President in an address to Congress before mentioning his decision to deny arms to all factions. This was regarded as tantamount to a declaration that Constitutional government no longer existed in Mexico and that the assistance hitherto given a legally constituted regime should cease.

The actual operation of this embargo, however, instead of effecting neutrality, imposed a condition of affairs against which Constitutionalists protested vigorously. They argued that the Huerta government could obtain supplies from Europe whereas the Constitutionalists were cut off from their only external base of supply—the American boundary. They continued the fighting, in the opinion of government officials here, against heavy odds, obtaining their ammunition by the slow process of conquest.

This argument has been repeated on the Washington administration, however, not only by the Constitutionalists sympathizers, who expressed their views before members of the United States Senate and before the American government, but also by William Bayard Hale, but had been laid before President Wilson by leaders in Congress.

APPROVAL.

Expression of warm approval came today from both ends of the Capitol when news spread of the President's decision to lift the embargo.

"Such an announcement does not surprise me," said Senator Lodge, Republican. "I would rather not comment on it, but I try to sustain the President in his foreign policy."

Senator Root, another Republican leader, commended the move, as did Democrats generally. Members of all political parties said that regardless of the merits of the embargo itself, the lifting of the embargo was a disadvantage to the Constitutionalists.

Many members of the Foreign Relations Committee who now approve the lifting of the embargo, had not done so at that time last August, and there are some, on the other hand, who think that the lifting of the embargo will hasten the revolution in Mexico might have been ended.

Many members of Congress are confident that the President's action means the termination of the revolution in a short time. Senators pointed out that the Constitution had been established and organized and related power, even though they had not established civil government in the territory under their control. They do not feel that the time has come for the United States to recognize the Constitutional forces as being the government of Mexico.

The lifting of the embargo had been a long time in the making. It was not until the President's decision to lift the embargo that the revolution in Mexico might have been ended.

GEN. CARRANZA MUCH ELATED.

THINKS LIFTING OF EMBARGO WILL SHORTEN WAR.

News of the Action of Wilson Is Conveyed to Rebel Chief by Telegram from Carranza at Washington and Causes Demonstration of Joy at Cuernavaca.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

CUIACAN (Sinaloa, Mex.) Feb. 3.—Gen. Carranza and the Constitutionalists here are elated over the report from Washington that President Wilson had lifted the embargo on shipment of arms into Mexico.

The lifting of the embargo, he said, would shorten the war. He said that the lifting of the embargo would shorten the war. He said that the lifting of the embargo would shorten the war.

Along the frontier the impression was that the action of the Washington government was in no way the result of a compromise with the revolutionary party of Mexico, and that it had been accomplished only through natural effort in Washington. It was said that Carranza had no direct dealings with the Wilson administration since the breaking off of negotiations conducted two months ago at Nogales, Sonora, through William Bayard Hale. Since that time it was understood Carranza had assumed a waiting policy, and made absolutely no attempt toward a renewal of negotiations.

CARRANZA TELEGRAM. The first news here was received in a telegram from Luis Carranza, the Constitutional representative in Washington, and immediately produced a similar attempt to cut off Carranza, made by the Huertista garrisons at Guaymas and Mazatlan.

Reaction. The lifting of the embargo was a setback to the Huertista garrisons at Guaymas and Mazatlan. The lifting of the embargo was a setback to the Huertista garrisons at Guaymas and Mazatlan.

The Greatest
Modern Educator
Of Children—
Mme. Montessori on her recent tour of America included Battle Creek, the great Pure Food Center, in her itinerary. Speaking of diet for children she makes the following statement (in the Chicago Daily Journal of Dec. 31, 1913):

"Coffee and tea should never be placed within reach of a childish hand."

Besides being an educator, Madame Montessori is a physician, and bases this advice on her scientific knowledge that an ordinary cup of coffee contains about 2 1/2 grains of caffeine—a poisonous drug. (also found in tea).

In these days of liberal education the average American parents is becoming informed concerning the baneful effects of tea and coffee drinking, not only on the youth, but on those further along in life.

How much better to place before the children (and older ones too) a wholesome, nutritious, pure food-drink such as

POSTUM
Made only of prime whole wheat and a small percent of pure molasses, Postum contains only the rich native value of the grain—good for young and old. Postum is free from caffeine or other harmful substance.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled to bring out its rich flavour and food value. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder. A teaspoonful stirred in a cup of hot water—with cream and sugar—makes a delightful beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

BANQUET ON THE TOP OF UNIVERSITY CAMPANILE.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Jan. 31.—Perched on a slimy platform 240 feet above the campus, forty diners partook of a banquet today that breaks all university records for high living. The meal will provide material for a new chapter in the "Cost of Living High."

The banquet, which was given by the construction company erecting the steel framework of the huge Sather Campanile to its employees and to university officials, was a full course dinner, served piping hot. The eatables were steam-heated, in a disjunct swinging crane, to the banquet platform, where white-jacketed waiters served them to the guests.

Far below on the campus hundreds of people watched the strange banquet, and speculated on the damage that a cup of coffee might do were it dropped from a diner's hand. From the banquet platform the entire vista of the bay country rolled itself out in the haze, crinkly and pookered, like a sheet of crumpled paper. Below the lattice work of braces glimpses of the Golden Gate were visible.

Those who aspire to live high should glance at the 240-foot banquet stand before they claim new records. First course, shrimp salad, olives, celery, pickles; second course, roast turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes, vegetables, rolls; third course, coffee, pie a la mode, cigars.

President Wheeler climbed up some two hundred ladder-like steps to attend the dinner and descended via the hoist bucket. Other university officials preferred the narrow stairways.

BAD OPERATION AVOIDED

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Sowers' Own Statement.

Hodgdon, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep. Then I would be so tired morning that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Hodgdon, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

prevented from so doing by inadequate support of Washington.

But the business has been broken up at last and the day may not be far distant when men, women and children who have grown rich at smuggling will open up little push-cart stands along the Mexican border, where Federal and rebels will come to bid for supplies.

CROSS THE LINE.

Fifty Mexicans under Senor Pablo-Marques, a Carranza agent, crossed the line at 3 o'clock this morning with 900 rounds of ammunition, 160 rifles of miscellaneous description, and complete field equipment.

The men were not mounted, but horses are declared to be plentiful on the other side and the invaders are said to be well supplied with funds.

The purpose of the smugglers is not defined, but there is no little significance in the fact that, coupled with their dash across the boundary, the embargo on arms, he will start on a new tack.

Cota openly declared that all Mexico has laughed at the so-called embargo on arms and that there has been no halt in smuggling operations.

"Southern California," he qualifies, "has had far less of it than Arizona. It is true there is a hole in the International line between San Diego and Yuma, but most of the Carranza munitions of war are being shipped across the line between Yuma and Nogales."

There are but two companies of American soldiers between Yuma and Nogales and Carranza's Mexican side in that territory. While it is a bit more difficult to get the soldiers across the border at Sonora, Carranza has never experienced any difficulty in getting them over once they were on the ground."

CHICAGO WOMEN REGISTER NAMES.

HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND BECOME LEGAL VOTERS.

Baby Stations Are Maintained in Many Wards for the Use of Mothers Attending to Their New Duties and Flowers Are Used to Decorate Polling Places.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—More than 150,000 women, Chicago's "newest citizens," became today legal voters of Chicago by registering.

Anticipating an unusually large feminine interest, the election officials appointed many women judges and clerks. These experienced but little difficulty in their unaccustomed places. It was expected that difficulty would result over the provision which requires voters to state their ages. As a stumbling block this was considerably overrated. Women gave their ages nonchalantly and without any particular effort to keep those in earshot from hearing.

Every effort apparently was put forward by men officials in charge to make the occasion agreeable to women. Polling places were made clean and attractive, and flowers were much in evidence. Also in many instances the men officials refrained from smoking.

There was an abolition of class lines throughout the entire city. Society women waited in line with their maids and cooks. Mayor Harrison, with Mrs. Harrison, their cook, their maid, their chauffeur, appeared together to register.

Acting as judges and clerks of election for the first time in the history of Illinois, approximately 100 women assisted in registering new voters.

"Baby stations," where mothers could leave their children while registering, were maintained in several wards by suffrage leaders and social organizations.

"Detained by household duties" was the explanation given by women clerks and judges of election.

WOMEN'S VOTES COUNT.

Men Spent Many of Their Ballots in Iowa Town Election and Are Out-numbered.

OTTUMWA (Iowa) Feb. 3.—More than 2000 women voted at yesterday's election here on a question of municipally-owned street lights, and besides adding to carry the project by a vote of nearly four to one showed the ability at voting that did the men, according to election officials today.

About seven men of the town were spotted and therefore not included in the count. The ratio was about three to two in favor of the women.

In one ward composed mainly of workmen and women, eighty men voted, but only sixteen women made a like error.

SUFFRAGE IN NEW JERSEY.

HOUSE FAVORS WOMAN VOTE.

TRENTON (N. J.) Feb. 3.—The House today passed a resolution for a State Constitutional amendment extending the right of suffrage to women, but of the bill the Senate. If that body adopts it the resolution will have to be passed again by the Legislature before it can be submitted to a vote of the people.

"DETECTIVE-ATTORNEY."

Government Special Agent Tells How Alaska Development Books Were Turned Over to Him.

SEATTLE (Wash.) Feb. 3.—A special agent of the Interior Department investigating land claims is an attorney, not a detective, maintained Special Agent John A. Smith, who was on the witness stand nearly all of today in the Alaska coal land conspiracy trial of Charles F. Munday and Archie W. Shiels.

Smith came here from Denver shortly before Munday was indicted by a Federal grand jury at Tacoma in 1910 and was received "frankly" by Munday, he testified, the books of the Alaska Development Company being turned over to him, with the understanding that he would use them to prove that Munday and Shiels employed dummy entrymen to locate claims to be turned over to the Alaska Development Company. Smith denied he made any effort to ingratiate himself with Munday or to deceive him.

The government lays stress on this discovery because the Alaska Development Company had claimed a monopoly of the actions of Alaskan H. Stracey, its agent, in getting powers of attorney and deeds from locators in the preceding year. Witness said Munday seemed greatly surprised when the papers were discovered and said he had not used them and did not intend to.

Robinson D. Gray, Recorder of the Katalla (Alaska) mineral district, testified that Stracey urged him to locate a coal claim for the company, but he refused. Witness had been assured by Munday he testified, that the company would ultimately get the Stracey coal lands.

Eats Freely But Has No Dyspepsia

A Little Pepin in a Mild Laxative Promptly Corrected in a Bad Indigestion.

Fortunate is the one who can eat "anything" without suffering the tortures of dyspepsia, but as few are so fortunate, care should be taken in the matter of diet. Eating slowly, masticating the food thoroughly and taking a short walk after the heavy meal of the day will do much towards assisting digestion. Any grown-up person ought to know the peculiar foods that do not agree, and these should be avoided.

When these common-sense aids fail, the next thing to do is to take a mild digestive tonic with laxative properties, and there is none better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains the greatest of all aids to digestion, good pepsin. It has other ingredients that act mildly on the bowels, which together form a combination for the relief of dyspepsia or indigestion that is unsurpassed. Its action is to tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels, muscles so that they can again do their work naturally without outside aid, and when that happy moment comes all medicine can be dispensed with. It is the best remedy obtainable for any disorder of the stomach, liver and bowels, for dyspepsia, constipation, flatulence, headache, drowsiness after eating, gas on the stomach, etc. Thousands of users will testify to this, among them Mr. J. W. Goucher.

J. W. GOUCHER.
Hites, Idaho, who for several years had all the worst symptoms of chronic dyspepsia. Since taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin these have all gone, and although Mr. Goucher says he is 64, he does not look more than 40.

Syrup Pepsin is sure in its results, and a vast improvement over chewing or swallowing tablets and mints, or taking cathartics, salts, etc., all of which are harsh and nauseous and at best do but temporary good. You can obtain Syrup Pepsin at any drug store for 50 cents or $1 a bottle. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington street, Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

WANT CHANGES IN AVEY ACT.

DRUGLESS PHYSICIANS SEEK RIGHTS WITH OTHERS.

Association Decides to Defend Dr. Eibl of Los Angeles and Dr. Brown of Napa, Who Have Been Arrested Under the State Medical Law for Practicing Without License

(Special Correspondence of The Times.)

OAKLAND, Feb. 2.—Following a meeting held here of the State board of directors of the American Association of Drugless Physicians it has been announced that the association will wage a determined campaign from now until the next session of the State Legislature to secure certain changes in the Avey act, passed at the last session of the Legislature for the regulation of the practice of medicine in this State. The drugless practitioners seek equal rights with doctors of medicine, surgeons, Christian Science and "divine" healers.

The association comprises graduates of medical schools and holding that all physical ailments can be cured without the use of either medicine or surgery.

One of the first moves against the Avey act will be the defense of two drugless physicians who have been arrested under the provisions of the present State medical law. These two cases are those of Dr. H. A. Eibl of Los Angeles and Dr. H. A. Brown of Napa. The State board of directors announced that they will carry these cases to the Supreme Court if necessary in order to obtain a ruling on certain provisions of the Avey act. Attorney Richard Ingalls of Los Angeles has been retained to defend Dr. Eibl and Attorney Edward Bell of Napa to defend Dr. Brown. In both cases the charge is "practicing medicine without a license" though the drugless physicians do not believe in the use of medicine.

The association has also determined to organize a department of scientific research which will study all unusual cases of physical and mental phenomena, and this department will be composed of members of the association from all parts of the State. The following are the State officers: Dr. George D. Gillespie of San Francisco, president; Dr. H. M. Ward of Oakland, first vice-president; Dr. Hattie V. Hunt of Berkeley, secretary; and Dr. George A. Bradley, treasurer.

Plans for a statewide campaign in behalf of drugless methods are now being made and these will be pushed vigorously until the convening of the Legislature.

Oroville Woman Gets Official Act of Congress Reversing Husband's Desertion Charge.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
OROVILLE, Feb. 2.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A fifteen-year battle to clear her husband's name of the stigma of being a deserter from the United States army ended with victory for Mrs. Jane Adams of Oroville today when she received a copy of an act by Congress which provided that her husband no longer would be considered a deserter.

Robert Adams, who was accused of deserting from the army, is dead. In the early '90s he enlisted in the United States army. In an Indian fight he received a scalp wound. He was taken to a hospital, but the wound refused to heal. He was discharged from the hospital but he was not allowed to leave until he was declared sane. After returning to the army from the hospital he was alleged to have deserted. His desertion charge was held accountable by Congress for his leaving the army.

Adams died fifteen years ago and since that time his wife has taken up the fight, which carried her to nearly every State in the Union while interviewing old comrades to secure affidavits to the effect that her husband was not a willful deserter. She was awarded $12 a month pension, with all back pay.

Former German Army Officer's Sentence for Subornation of Espionage Surrounds by Secrecy.

(BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.)
BERLIN, Feb. 2.—Baron von der Goltz, a former lieutenant-commander of the German navy, was sentenced today to serve three months in a fortress for subornation of espionage. He was acquitted of the charge of personally betraying military secrets. The greatest secrecy surrounded the trial, which began yesterday, the authorities saying that the safety of the State was involved.

The Baron is a nephew of Field Marshal Baron Koltz von der Goltz, the famous Prussian general and the Berlin representative of the Berlin Cannon Works of Dusseldorf.

CRAMPS, GAS AND NUMBNESS ARE DISPELLED BY AKOZ TREATMENT

E. S. Dourte, of Hamburger's, Has Strong Praise for the New Radio-Active Mineral Remedy

E. S. Dourte of Hamburger's, a famous sportsman, has just returned home to No. 912 Central avenue, Glendale, as just been relieved of a severe case of stomach trouble that seriously impaired his health. After suffering three years with the ailment, he got relief in one month from Akos, the radio-active mineral. He is now a member of the State Labor Commission and State Labor Commissioner John D. Mackenzie of San Francisco.

Not only did Mr. Dourte suffer from cramps and gas, but he also noticed that he was becoming numb in his hands and feet and at the base of his spine. He was naturally greatly alarmed. When he fully realized the seriousness of his condition, he tried the Akos internal treatment with marked success.

"For three years I had such serious stomach trouble that I suffered with Charted Results of the Balkan War.

In black and white, Shaded and unshaded sections, the above map is intended to show at a glance what happened in the southeastern part of Europe as the result of the late war in the Balkans. One of the amazing results appears to be that Rumania obtained so large a slice of territory. The territory as outlined is either occupied or claimed by the powers to which it is credited, but the certificates of title will not be delivered until the great powers of Europe have confirmed the claims of the lesser powers.

BALKAN SPOILS DIVISION IS DEVELOPING UNREST.

(BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

LONDON, Feb. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is impossible to forecast the date on which the powers will ratify the action taken at Bucharest in dividing the spoils of the Balkan war or to learn if the plan then agreed upon will stand in the final settlement. Unrest is developing over the Balkans and emergencies may arise that will upset present plans at any time.

According to the Bucharest agreement, Bulgaria is to receive 17,000 square kilometers of Macedonia and Thrace, 23,000 square kilometers of land and 300,000 population.

Bulgaria lost 7000 square kilometers of Dobruja to Rumania and gained 23,000 square kilometers of land and 300,000 population.

Greece formerly had 2,632,000 population and grabbed 1,500,000 new population and 45,000 square kilometers of land, Crete, Epirus, South Macedonia, Drama, Ceres and Kavala.

Serbia formerly had 1,000,000 population was awarded 1,100,000 new population and 32,000 square kilometers of land.

Montenegro obtained 7000 square kilometers of land and 230,000 new inhabitants.

Albania, the new State created by the powers in the Balkans, has 29,000 square kilometers of land and 300,000 population. Almost a million Albanians were not included within the boundaries of this new governmental entity.

Turkey, after the war had been considered ended, rallied and recaptured its lost provinces and regained its former position of power in the East.

Some far-sighted observers, indeed, have gone so far as to see an early Russian attack on the Balkans. France, Italy and Japan bound together in a definite alliance, both for offense and defense. In that event Russia might occupy the position of "splendid isolation" that was the lot of England during the Boer war—a lot that the late King Edward VII did more than any man at the time to change. Certainly Germany and Austria have had their own way pretty much in Europe during the last six months and it is not likely that they will be permitted by Russia indefinitely to dictate military organization and frontiers of Russia's nearest neighbors.

LONDON BANKERS FAIL.

Firm of Coulson, Berthoud & Co., Doing Much American and Mexican Business, Suspends Payments.

(BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.)

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Coulson, Berthoud & Co., a small foreign banking house in Moorgate street, suspended payment today. An evening newspaper says its liabilities are $5,000,000, but an official of the bank characterized this statement as greatly exaggerated.

The firm of Coulson, Berthoud & Co. was really more of a mercantile house than a bank. It did considerable American and Mexican business. O. Berthoud, who died recently, had been closely associated with the rubber boom. It was rumored at one time that Berthoud contemplated absorbing the firm.

The failure apparently was hastened by the assignment yesterday of Fry, Miers & Co., South African mercantile. Accountants who have charge of the affairs of the firm, say the liabilities are between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000.

SEARCH FOR REVOLUTIONIST PROVES A FAILURE.

Peruvian Government Makes Serious Unsuccessful Attempts to Arrest Dr. Augusto Durand, a Former Leader—Refusal to Dissolve Congress Causes Political Uncertainty.

(BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.)

LIMA (Peru), Feb. 2.—Unsuccessful attempts to arrest Dr. Augusto Durand, former revolutionary leader, were made today by the police. His residence was searched vainly. Five visitors were taken into custody. A raid was then made on the Union Club. Four members were seized and the premises closed, the police leaving a guard in charge.

The political situation has become very complicated owing to the demand of the inhabitants of many provinces that Congress be dissolved, and the refusal of the present parties to permit this course.

Congress in December refused to sanction the budget for 1914 presented to it in August. The government thereupon issued a decree that the old estimates would remain in force for the next twelve months.

This action had been preceded by a message from President Billinghurst in which he emphasized the necessity for a loan of $25,000,000.

GERMANS 'INVADE' FRANCE.

Two Lieutenants in a Military Aeroplane Land Six Miles Inside the Republic's Frontier.

(BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.)

NANCY (France), Feb. 2.—Another German military aeroplane alighted today on French territory. It landed near the village of Croismare, six miles inside the French frontier.

The two aviators, Lieut. Priester and Gemen of the German army, immediately called on the Mayor of Croismare. As they were in their German uniforms, they created considerable excitement in the village. They explained they had left Strasbourg for Metz, but had lost their way in a fog. Their machine was damaged in landing.

Two generals of the French army have been ordered to proceed from here to Croismare to investigate the incident.

WON'T REMOVE.
The ladies of a Brooklyn Congregational church have refused the request of the deacons that they remove their hats during divine service and they defy the deacons to compel obedience to the request. They say that nobody is inconvenienced by their action, for the men go to sleep during the sermon anyhow. Any deacon who attempts to forcibly remove a sister's hat will learn how sharp a point a hat pin has.

MILLIONS IN IT.
The government appears to be somewhat embarrassed by an enormous decrease in customs receipts. Even a Democratic administration cannot eat its cake and have it too. It does the people no particular good to put money in one pocket and take it out of the other. It takes just so much to run the country, and the people will always be the source of that revenue. They are paying indirectly through the tariff or directly by taxation, but pay they certainly must so long as they enjoy the privilege and protection of organized society.

THEIR FUTURE.
The Express suddenly acquiesces in the inevitability of Johnson's defeat. It could not well do otherwise unless it proposed to fight the multiplication table. The registration returns make Johnson's retraction to private life absolutely inevitable. Notwithstanding this obvious fact our steamed one cent coten urges Progressives who have not yet registered to do so, with a view of preventing the party for the future. What future? Either the Republicans will win at the coming election or else the Democrats, with Progressive help, will elect their ticket. In either event it will require the aid of a powerful microscope to discern the political future of the Johnson-Earl-Eddie gang.

THE ROOT OF EVIL.
When the Christian church first tried the community property plan Ananias gave all liars a hard name by holding out on the combine. History does not dispute the fairness of the heads of the church at that time. In Los Angeles there is ugly talk about a preacher who is said to have secured the deeds of the property of women parishioners and to have then found cause to eject them from the organization. It was bad enough for them to buy something they didn't want, but to buy it and then not get it, is the limit. American greed, by the way, put an end to a beautiful practice of California's early church days. When the missions were young here there was a guest table on which was a heap of gold and silver to which the passing stranger was welcome to help himself in case of necessity. The first American who found it took the whole pot and destroyed the gracious custom.

A GOOD MOVE.
The Women's Republican League of Southern California has been organized in this city. We cannot too highly commend this move. It may be that as women and men become more accustomed to universal suffrage the need of such an organization will disappear, but for the present the women will secure the best results for their party and for their special interests by having their own working machinery. It will give them added strength with their party to do so and will arouse women and men to the need of using the ballot. It is useless for women to attempt to preserve a non-partisan attitude. Parties stand for principle, and all definite legislation is accomplished through them. Women may stand together for the ideal in government as steadfastly within the ranks of a party as they could outside of it, and they can accomplish vastly more for a complete working identity.

NON-USE OF COLUMBIA RIVER.
The Oregon papers have been for months urging the government of the United States to improve the upper Columbia River until it will be possible for a river steamer to load with lumber and grain in Canada and steam without shifting cargo to Portland or Astoria. And now, like lightning out of a clear sky, comes the announcement of the withdrawal from service on the Columbia River of the Open River Transportation Company's line of steamers. These steamers, according to the Portland Oregonian, were put on to establish a service over an important stretch of the river. They are taken off because business does not justify their continuance. An eastern exchange pertinently inquires: "How can the government be asked to put more money into Columbia River improvements when the Columbia River recently improved is not used?" It is very sensibly held that the government work to men and to excite admiration.

Encouragement for river improvement on a large scale where the main object is not the impounding of flood waters to prevent inundation and promote irrigation—and such is not the case on the Columbia River—will not be derived from the abandonment of the Upper Columbia River by the steamers of the Open River Transportation Company. Nothing will so clearly and satisfactorily establish the nation's need of internal waterways improvement as the utilization of the waterways already available. It is for the people, by patronizing the water service, to make river navigation profitable. If they fail to do this when the opportunity is offered they can blame nobody but themselves for the consequence.

TRIUMPHANT REPUBLICANS.
The smashing triumph of the Republicans of California in the registration has not lulled the Old Guard of the Grand Old Party into complacent inaction. It has rather increased the vim of the enthusiasts. Organizations of Republicans are forming spontaneously in all parts of the State. Thousands upon thousands of honest citizens who were deceived by humbug Progressivism are turning again to the eternal principles of government enunciated by the nation's greatest statesmen to the Old Guard of Republicanism has defended with militant courage and propagated with missionary zeal.

It is the dawn of a new morning in California. Fakers and faddists have exercised their impotency too long. The citizens are crying out against the regime of autocratic extravagance that has introduced class legislation. They are voting their protest against Progressive feudalism in the offices of the registrars throughout the State. The battle for liberty, equality and protection under the law has assumed a new significance. A few years ago no man or woman thought that a future campaign would be fought for the perpetuation of those rights guaranteed by the Constitution of this republic. But such is the fight now on between the Republicans and that party which has strengthened itself by debauching efficiency to establish favoritism—that party which has terrorized and harassed the business institutions of the State—that party which has taken a public official and clothed him with despotic powers, has given him commissions with jurisdiction over every form of industry and has made those commissions answerable to no one but himself.

This is a republic, not a principality. An outraged and indignant people are protesting. They are joining with the veterans of the Grand Old Party whose bucklers are ever raised in defense of the constitutional rights bequeathed by our forefathers. The battle cries of true Republicanism are being lifted in the cities and in the hamlets; their echoes are answered from the mountain sides and from the valleys; from Skisyou to San Diego, the clans are rallying and the triumphant march against the usurpers at Sacramento has begun.

Never in the history of the State so far from the day of election has there been such activity in politics. It only emphasizes the determination of Republicans to restore California to its rights and liberties; it only shows the energy with which that determination is sustained. Already the walls of despotism above the battlements where the Progressives are entrenched. In vain they have tried to ruin the Republican party by treachery; in vain they have exhorted the citizens to register as Progressives; in vain they have offered "explanations" and excuses. They are foredoomed; the temples of the fakers are crumbling about their heads and they are fighting with the desperation of men who are fully conscious that a just retribution is upon them.

WHEN ALL ARE PAID ALIKE.
Under Socialism all wages are to be the same—the physician is to get no more than the coal heaver; the inventor and the laborer who works in the street will receive exactly the same reward, or, as Socialist Hyndman declared, "good and bad alike will be doing their social best for the community and will be entitled to full participation in the enjoyment of the wealth created by the work of the whole body."

Don't you see where such a system would lead? It would bring "equality," of course, but equality by a leveling down process that would be most detrimental to the interests of the whole race. If the good workman could see no greater results from his labor than those enjoyed by the bad workman—if the industrious saw the miser getting the same pay for doing little as he got for doing much—and if there was a distinct prohibition against any one lifting himself into a better position by earning more than another, the vital principle which has been, and is, the source of all human progress would quickly be eliminated.

Suppose that Socialism were adopted and you, knowing your livelihood was assured, were working side by side with a man who was producing only about half as much as you. Would the fact that his sloth and incapacity did not count against him inspire you to do your best work, especially when you realized that the surplus value of your toil was destined to be divided with him, in spite of his failure to make good?

More than eighty years ago the French Communists found themselves confronted with this very serious problem, and, as a result, they addressed a manifesto to the Chamber of Deputies setting forth that the equal division of property would constitute a "greater violence, a more revolting injustice, than the unequal division which was originally effected by force of arms."

Of course, Marx attempts to meet this objection by declaring that Socialism will take "from each according to his ability, and give to each according to his need." But what assurance is there that each would give according to his ability? The workers do not do this today even though it is possible they may profit very materially—both in position and in wages—as a reward for their superior ability or greater industry. Under Socialism there would be no reward whatever for individual efficiency.

But, even suppose that the technical difficulties were overcome, and the more efficient permitted themselves to be "robbed" of a share of the value of their labor that it might be paid, although unearned, to the less efficient members of the community, what would become of the Socialist promise that each worker is to get the "full product of his labor"? If such a system were to be established, a surplus would have to be made by the more capable, that there might be enough to support the least capable, for it is a safe assumption that there would be workers in the Co-operative Commonwealth who would be incapable of earning their salt, just as there are such laborers today. So far from giving the worker the full product of his labor the promise of equal remuneration is an assurance that things are to be worse for the efficient under Socialism than they are under the present industrial system.

We know how it is in the world about us. For example, the speed of a naval feet is limited to the speed of its slowest craft. In every race there must be a peacemaker, and ambition is a spur to human progress that we cannot afford to despise. Ability is the only standard by which service can be tested—the performance of the most efficient. Reward all equally, and you have removed the very cornerstone upon which civilization has been built. "True equality," says Dr. Shaffer, "consists in giving to everyone the right and the possibility of developing his individuality to its full measure."

Not that all should have everything, which would lead to no one having anything—nor yet that all should rule and none serve. It is necessary that those prominent in the lower grade may be able to find their way upwards.

"Nature knows no such thing as equality," says President Butler. "Destroy inequality of talent and capacity, and life, as we know it, stops. The corner-stone of democracy is natural inequality. Liberty is far more precious than equality, and the two are mutually destructive."

In spite of all this, however, the Socialist agitator still boasts at the street corner that the adoption of Socialism would mean equality in the highest sense of the term. Is this true? Would equality in remuneration—or anything else that Socialism proposes—eliminate classes?

THE SOUTH IN THE SADDLE.
The course of legislation at Washington thus far indicates that whatever the record, whatever the purposes of the Democratic party, and whatever set of principles it may—for the time being—profess, it is ruled, absolutely and utterly ruled, by its southern wing. Northern Democrats are like the tall to the kite—no, not even that, for the tall does at least ballast the kite—they are like the tail of the dog, important only when the dog chooses to wag it, and, disavowed from the dog, of no consequence to the dog or anybody else.

Southern Democratic leaders always kept northern Democrats as chained satraps at their chariot wheels. It was the privilege of southern Democrats to drive and ride and of northern Democrats to run alongside in the dirt and often to swallow a large amount of dirt during the journey. Except in the matter of holding a few offices the partnership has been utterly profitless to the northern members of the firm. It has resembled the historic partnership where one partner owned all the property and the other owed all the debts.

"History," says Macaulay, "is philosophy teaching by example," and a reference to a few leading facts in Democratic history may serve as useful admonitions to the young men and women who are now entering upon the scene of political action. Recall the record. The assault on Sumner; the outcry against coercion of the South; Buchanan's policy of imbecility; opposition to the war for the preservation of the Union; opposition to the enlistment of volunteers; opposition to the admission of Kansas and Nebraska as free States; opposition to the exclusion of slavery from the Territories; opposition to the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia; opposition to the enlistment of black men in the Union armies; opposition to the Emancipation Proclamation; opposition to the draft; opposition to appropriations for the army and navy; opposition to the homestead law; opposition to the issuance of greenbacks; opposition to the redemption of greenbacks; opposition to each amendment to the Constitution of the United States; opposition to laws to enforce the Constitution; opposition to protection to American industries; opposition to the maintenance of our currency at par with gold; opposition to internal improvements; opposition to all wise schemes of finance or of development.

This is the record that the Democratic party has made for itself, and it is a record that can neither be defended nor denied. We judge of men's future by their past. Why not apply the maxims to organizations as well as to individuals. If a convicted burglar were a candidate for County Treasurer, is there anything in the ethics of politics that should prohibit reference to his record? Has the Black-Frand Society of Assassins a right to equal esteem from society with the Methodist Church?

The Times desires to perpetuate no profitless memories of strife; but it is the Democrats who arrogantly provoke reference to them. The Republicans of the country would be recreant to their duty to the youth of the nation if they failed to remind them what the Democratic party has cost this nation.

Its mere existence as a party in the North after the rebellion had assumed nature proportions cost us two years more of war, 500,000 more lives, $1,500,000,000 more treasure, and two years more of slavery. It cost us three years' delay in reconstruction, five years more of shattered industries, and ten years more of depreciated currency. It cost us, in fact, all the lives and treasure expended, for without it there would have been no war, and when—through the efforts of its southern wing—there was war, its clamor and the fear of its power entangled our generals in the web of Fabian policies, and cramped our early legislation to the dimensions of its own narrowness. It prattled about its desire for peace when the air was murky with the smoke of battles it inaugurated. It tried to stop the advancing bayonets of our soldiers with its puerile shriek: that the war for the Union was a failure, and the false hope of its assistance kept the armies of rebellion in the field two years longer than they could otherwise have been maintained.

Who shall say that this arrogant, slavery-loving, freedom-hating embodiment of the spirit of a nation's past, that "progressive" treachery has helped to temporary power in the nation, is as fit to rule this land or any part of it as the grand old Republican party, whose shield bears no red sinister to show that its fathers ever dallied in the arms of slavery, and whose bright sword never flashed save in defense of the oppressed?

POETS.
WALT MASON IN THE TIMES.

I'd rather write one line, be jabers, to stimulate the man who labors at dreary tasks and hard, than have my brow with bays incumbered, and hear folks say that I'd rather chirp one little sonnet to cheer the dame with last year's bonnet, the seamstress, in her room, than the tired and heavy laden, to bring a smile to some maid who bends above her loom, than write an ode on which the scholars would up and bet their bottom dollars that it would never die; that sing a song so great and stirring that it would set the critics purring, and make my rivals cry. The mighty bards! Their stately measure was always writ for folks of leisure who had all kinds of time to read poems, on divans and in their rooms, and to the meaning of that dog-eared rhyme. And so I sit here by the willers and sing the tollers and the tillers, the hewers of the wood; and if I cheer one soul that's saddened, this fat old heart of mine is gladdened, and life seems sweet and good.

DR. AKED FORESTALLED.

(Town Talk.) Dr. Aked led a cohort of uplifters to the police tribunal last week when Judge Deasy heard arguments on the propriety of the film play, "The Inside of the White Slave Traffic." Much to the pleasant surprise of the judges, Judge Deasy declined to hear any but counsel. But just the same Dr. Aked saw a chance to utter himself and seized upon it with avidity. While Attorney Tim Crowley was speaking for the Board of Censors he heard a sneering expression from Dr. Aked and protested to the court, calling Dr. Aked by name. Dr. Aked jumped up. "Your honor," he cried, "I am not a member of the bar, but when I am attacked I surely have the right to reply."

Before Judge Deasy could interpose or Dr. Aked could continue, Rabbi Nieto, who had the seat next to Dr. Aked, arose.

"Your honor," said Rabbi Nieto, "I am responsible for this. It was not a sneer but a laugh Mr. Crowley heard. Dr. Aked was laughing at a facetious remark I made."

Dr. Aked sat down, not too well pleased that Rabbi Nieto had cheated him of a speech. But the question is, did Rabbi Nieto flatter himself? May not Dr. Aked have sneered at his facetious remark?

An Ambiguous Answer.

(February Lippincott's.) Mr. and Mrs. Murphy were frequently in court. Sometimes Murphy complained of his wife, at other times Mrs. Murphy had her husband arrested for abuse, and on still other occasions neighbors had them both in court for disturbing the peace with their brawls. The judge was becoming rather tired of having them before him.

"This is the sixth time one or the other of you has been up before me for fighting," he declared, out of patience; "now, tell me truthfully, cannot you two live happily without fighting?"

"No, Yer Honor," replied Mrs. Murphy; "not happily."

PLENTY OF TIME TO READ.

But Not Very Much Time to Think.

"I have scarcely read a book through since I left college," a man with a degree—perhaps a degree and seven-eighths, said to me the other day. Since I went into the business of making a living, I have never had any time for reading. I afterward learned that he had still less time for such a frivolous occupation while he was in college, so that he wasn't really, you might call a reading man. But I didn't know that at the time.

But I did know that he wasn't giving me the correct reason for his neglect of books. Very few people ever do. I have ever noticed that when men quit reading they begin lying. Some of them, very clever men, begin the second habit before they drop the first, and some keep up the two in collaboration all through their lives. I don't say that the habit of reading, in itself, is equal to that of prayer, as a moral or ethical influence on the mind of man.

Kept on Reading.

Meanwhile, the man who had no time even on reading the advertisements in the pages of the trolley car. When a man can read, he unconsciously finds time for reading. He reads on the run. He can lose the habit of course. It will atrophy from disuse. But that's the man's own fault. That is no excuse for not reading. As for having "no time for reading"—that's sheer nonsense. The time is manufactured with the books or would be, were there no other way of supplying it. Everybody has time to read. We have plenty of time for everything else, lots of time, with small slices of eternity for tango, bridge and symphony concerts. And any one who has a mind has time to read.

All in the Round of the Clock.

Now, when I was a lad my father's house was poor in Manganese. My mother had one servant. The children increased in biennial installments, regular as the calendar, until they grew from one to nine. And yet I never remember the time when there was not plenty of time in the house, with all its multifarious duties of household drudgeries and pleasures, that there was not more time to read than anything else.

Why, in those days I myself, being but a lad, accomplished a feat in reading which few other boys ever wrought, and lived to boast about it. I read the "Proverbial Philosophy" of Martin Farquhar Tupper, through to the bitter end, which was both ends.

Not because I loved it, but because my father heard unwholesome noises in the back yard during the stillness of one quiet Sabbath afternoon, and discovered me bombarding the barn of our neighbor, Charles Fisher, with over-ripe tomatoes. I was doing this partly for the thrill of breaking the Sabbath, and partly with the object of toes explode with the general effect of dynamite, against the gray surface of the barn.

Fitting the Punishment to the Crime.

It seemed that my crime coincided with the purchase of Martin Farquhar Tupper's "Proverbial Philosophy" and with the fact that my father thought he would rather read to me than to have me read to him. He loved to have somebody read to him, and so I was butchered to make a Roman holiday. Dreary holidays had those poor old Romans.

This incident is introduced to show how much time we really had to read in those deliciously idle busy days without making much fuss about it. When somehow or other people accomplished things, somehow or other we did things. Somehow or other in those dull, dreary days, Columbus discovered a vast continent, whereas now we cannot even discover the North Pole, which isn't worth finding anyhow. Somehow or other our fathers established a mighty republic, concerning which we have never ceased day or night to brag and boast and blow about, taking all the credit to ourselves for the discovery of it, the founding of it, and the establishing of it. A great many of us are opposed to the teaching anything about it in the public schools on the ground that it is antiquated. Somehow or other men did things before we were born, although we are very loath to believe it.

The Old Fashion of "Reading Aloud."

I wonder if people read aloud so much as they used? I almost never read a book to myself when I can persuade anyone else to read it aloud to me. Reading to oneself is a selfish, slovenly form of literary exercise. It affords no training whatever in correct pronunciation. Reading to yourself, you come across a word which you see for the first time. You don't know how to pronounce it and you don't exactly know what it means; in fact, you don't at all know what it means. But you read it aloud to someone else, and you find out the meaning of that dog-eared rhyme. And so I sit here by the willers and sing the tollers and the tillers, the hewers of the wood; and if I cheer one soul that's saddened, this fat old heart of mine is gladdened, and life seems sweet and good.

The Bliss of Ignorance.

The time comes when you want to use that word, when you know it is a very word you want to use in a certain connection, and you don't dare to say it for fear you will pronounce it wrong, and for fear it does not mean exactly what you think it does. And some time you do risk it anyway, and both your terrible suspicions are cruelly confirmed. You had two chances to go and you missed them both.

But when you read aloud, the reader hesitates at the word, a little discussion ensues over a disputed pronunciation, the great arbiter, the dictionary, is called in, and the whole page is illuminated. You get more out of one chapter read aloud than you do out of one book that you glide through by yourself—or rather, you don't glide through it in shuffling, heelless slippers of slovenly carelessness. It takes only a little while every day to cultivate a careful habit, not of reading, but of thinking as well.

The "reading aloud" book must have a combination of readable and elocutionary qualities. You must scan more than one shelf of books before you find a good book to read aloud. It must have "style," and a scansion without being staccato. It must be thoughtful, rather philosophical, not "too funny," and dialect is objectionable. It should have plenty of passages for agreement, and about as many suggestions for discussion. And, last, it should be sentences murder it at once. And there must be lot of "good stopping places." The conversational style is a great virtue in the book to be read aloud. Poetry should be read aloud only by one person, and the reader should be chained to a lonely tree in the deep heart of an impenetrable forest, where his shrill cries for help could be heard only by the wild birds and the idle winds.

made her first lady in waiting in the court. It was while on leave from her duties to attend upon her father who was fatally ill in Shanghai (where he died in 1903) that the Princess met the young American Consul. It was a case of love at first sight on both sides and the beautiful Princess took to the Consul as if he were a brother. She was married Mr. White in 1907. He was the son of a prominent family of Los Angeles. White's mother, Mrs. Ada White, was, until about a year ago, president of the Los Angeles Club. She is a member of the Avenir Club.

Seven Twins.
Farmer Williams had just returned from the big city. All the town were interested in the arrival of the twins at the village.
Farmer Williams listened to the news as he could and then he said: "I forgot to tell you that I have seven twins I seen in the city." Everyone was interested in the wonder of wonders. For he had never heard of seven twins.
"Well," said Farmer Williams, "I sure did, an' they are 'E.S. Maryland' on their hats."

BEADLESTON IS QUITE NERVY.

Bets that He Can Beat the Coronado Team

With Picked Quartette from Riverside.

Lord Innes-Ker Is Barred from Game.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
RIVERSIDE, Feb. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Perry Beadleston's confident belief that he can so break up the great scoring combination as represented in the Coronado "A" team as to defeat it by a picked Riverside team, assisted by himself, has led to the posting of a $500 wager, Walter Dupee being the second party to the contract.
Beadleston, of course, stipulates that the proper handicap be allowed and this has been acceded to by the millionaire sportsman, who more than any one else is responsible for the assembling of the magnificent team Coronado boasts at the present time.
W. B. Huston, H. G. Patten and H. Lett have been selected by Beadleston for the last play of the tournament tomorrow afternoon, and Lord Innes-Ker has been eliminated from the Coronado team.
This means that the combination play that has been a feature of the playing of Drury and Beadleston during the tourney will be absent from the contest and that the well-nigh perfect work of Lord Innes-Ker at back will be delegated to the more or less questionable ability of another player.
Coronado's line-up in addition to Drury, who is a whole team in himself, will consist of Dupee, Black and Park. "You're on," promptly responded Dupee, when Beadleston's offer was made at dinner at the Glenwood Mission Inn. As a result of the posting of the wager, the indications are tonight that the final game will have the largest attendance of the series.

DICK CROKER PLANS ARENA.

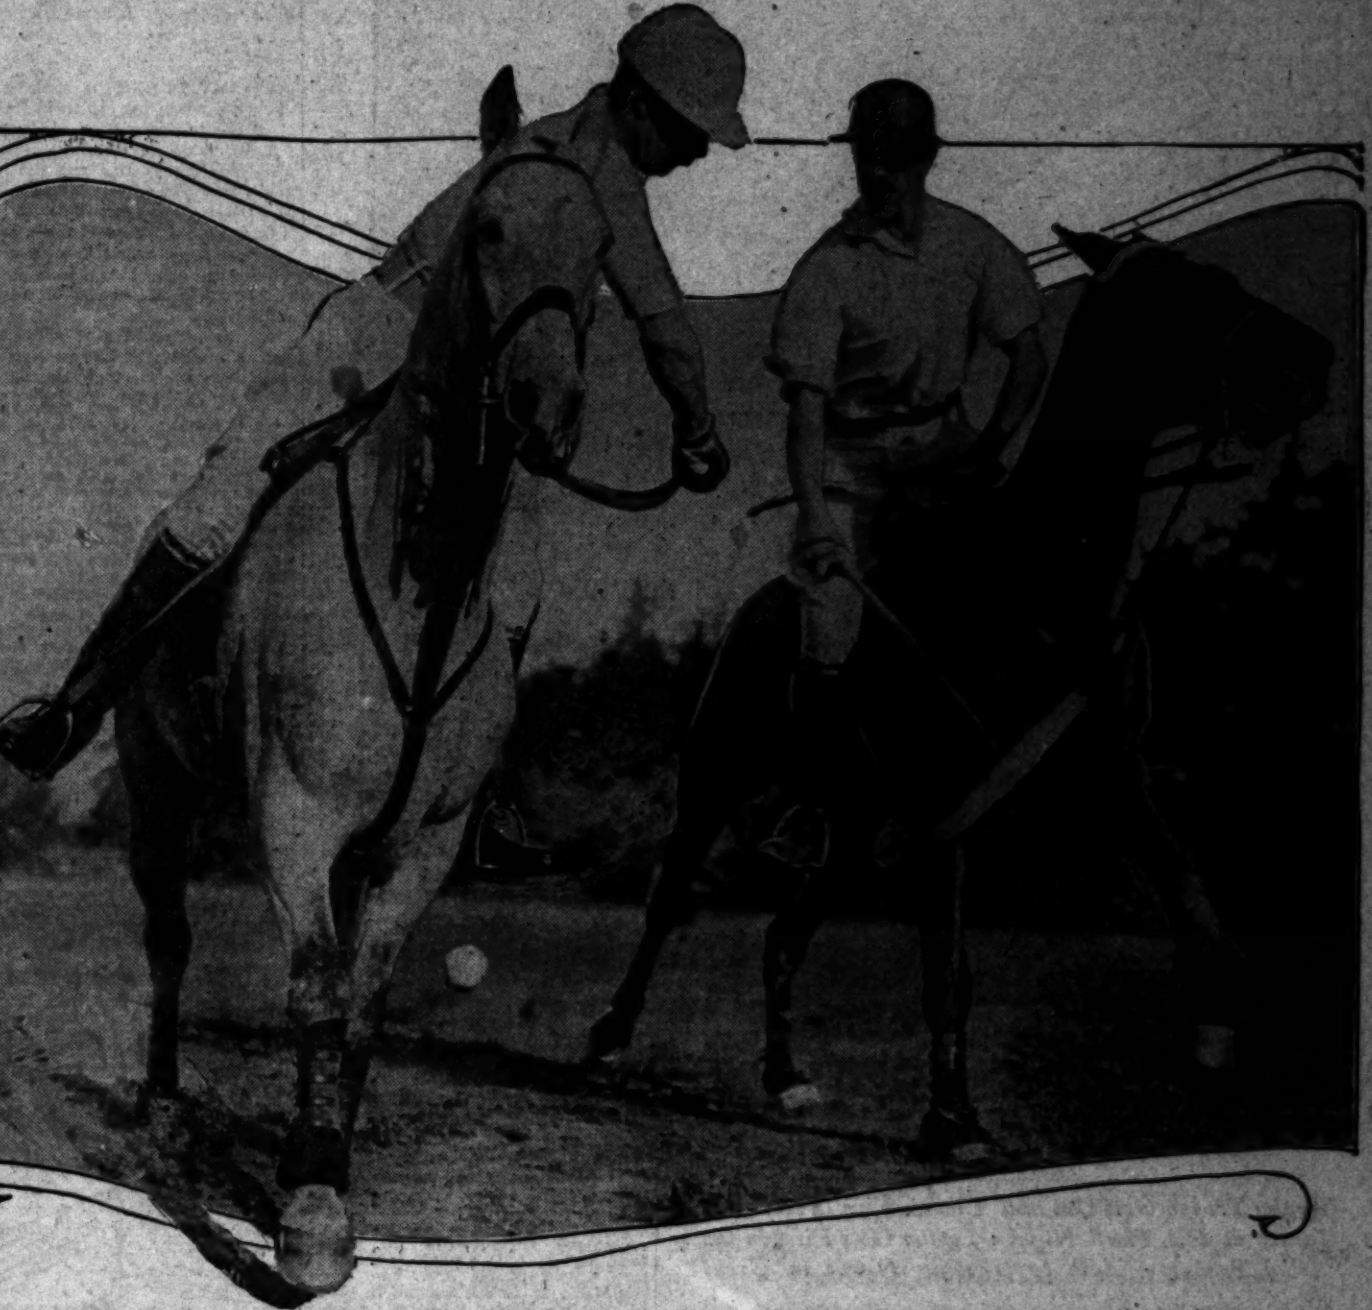

(Special Correspondence of The Times.)
DUBLIN, Feb. 3.—Most of his friends imagine that Richard Croker had had enough of boxing ventures in the United States and that he had practically quit. He has, however, decided to have another "futter," but this time it will be in the capacity of a promoter rather than a backer.
With his friend, Martin Fitzgerald, he is planning a scheme by which it is proposed to erect a huge boxing arena in Dublin which can be utilized as a circus when "muff merchants" are not available. Here the two sportsmen hope to present to the Irish public the champions of all nations, but it is Croker's ambition to unearth Irishmen who will be potential champions in all classes. He believes the material is in the country and only requires to be dug out. All the same, he is not going to spend a cent in backing any of them, even when they materialize. "Back your fancy, but avoid horses that talk," is the latest bon mot of the ex-Tammany boss.
The guiding principle of the new venture will be to offer substantial inducements to capable exponents of the "muff" business who raise their reputations more than the applause and patronage of the professional backer. By this means Croker and his friend hope to purify the boxing game and rescue it from the degenerate state to which it has been reduced by unscrupulous promoters and backers who only fight to "take."

ROBINSON BEATS POWELL AT NELMS.

Robinson defeated Powell in the Brunswick amateur baltline handicap tournament in fifty innings, with a score of 266 to 124. Powell is rated to play at 180 points.
Robinson played some sterling billiards, making one run of thirty-six, Kemper (250) and Celaya (180) are scheduled for tonight's game.

CHADBOURNE IS WITH FEDERALS.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
PORTLAND, Feb. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In a letter received today by Manager McCredie, Chester Chadbourne stated that he had signed with the Kansas City Federals at the time the dispatches told of this event, and explained why he did so.
In his missive Chad states that he held off signing until after he knew that Portland had secured Buddy Ryan and that he didn't figure that his absence would weaken the Portland team appreciably.
The offer he received from the Kansas City club was such a good one that under the circumstances he could hardly afford to turn it down.
Chadbourne says that whether the Federal League succeeds or not, he has a three-year contract, and under these conditions, he has nothing to worry about, and goes with the best wishes of the Portland boss.

Lord Innes-Ker and Hugh Drury. The unbeatable pair of Englishmen, who are putting up a remarkable game for the Coronado polo team. Perry Beadleston, one of their team-mates, says that he can break up the combination with a picked team from Riverside.

COULON IS NOW READY TO SIGN THE ARTICLES.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Johnny Coulon is fortifying himself against all attacks and says that just as soon as the manager of Kid Williams makes good his persistent boasts he will sign articles for a battle which will decide the bantamweight championship.
Because he has been carefully guarding his precious title, Coulon has been attacked by ambitious managers. Johnny says he is not quite ready to defend his title in a long bout, but he will do so when the other party makes good. By making good Coulon insists that Williams' manager give $1000 to charity, Harris' own proposition. "In order to exploit Williams," says Coulon, "Harris made the offer to give this sum to charity if I would sign articles in twenty-four hours. I have a standing offer of $5000 with a privilege of 40 per cent. from Tom McCarey at Los Angeles. I will agree to sign articles for a battle, but only when Harris deposits his $1000."

Sammy Harris, when told of Coulon's telegram, said that his offer was not a bluff and that he would put up the money whenever Coulon signs the articles.

WHALING MIGHT JOIN FEDERALS.

STOVALL SUBJECTS HIM TO A TEMPTATION.
The golden lure of the Federal League is tempting Bert Whaling, star back-stop of the Boston Nationals, George Stovall, manager, scout, first baseman, and press agent for the Kansas City Federal League team, has made Whaling a splendid offer. Whaling is considering the offer very seriously, and Stovall may get the big receiver. Whaling would be a tower of strength on Stovall's team. Last season Whaling led the National League catchers in fielding with a grand average of .990. In 77 games he had only one passed ball and but three errors. He hit .245, his hits coming when they did the most damage.
Ernie Johnson is spending the winter with Olson of the Cleveland Americans and with "Cactus" Cravath, the slugging prima donna of the Phillies, at Laguna Beach. Johnson has put on weight pulling big fish out of the deep sea and running down cotton-tails in the hills. He carries 154 pounds now and will probably weigh 160 before the season opens. With this additional weight behind his swings, Ernie expects to pick up his hitting this year. His fielding is all of a big league caliber.
The signed contracts of Johnny Kane and Pitcher Griffin sailed into Venice headquarters yesterday and brought a sigh of relief from Hap. Two more Hognitts safe from the clutches of the Federal League.

WELTERWEIGHT BOUT IS OFF.

McFarland and Gibbons are NOT TO MEET.
Packer Blames Promoters. They Blame Gibbons and Mike Blame McFarland—Real Reason that Gibbons Had No Right to Give Packer Lion's Share.
(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There will be no ten-round bout in New York between Mike Gibbons and Packer McFarland. Monday both McFarland and Gibbons demanded that the Gotham promoter give some reason for his failure to go through with the mill.
Today this same Gotham matchmaker passed it on to Gibbons, claiming that the Minnesota wizard was unable to make the weight and from the Twin City comes the story that Mike blames it on McFarland, saying he backed out at the last minute.
The real reason for the postponement was because the money men back of the Garden Club had refused to give Matchmaker Gibbons permission to offer McFarland a lion's share of the receipts.
LACEY BEATS HIRSHLEON.
Lacey last night defeated Hirshleon in the amateur handicap three-cushion tournament in progress at Morley's Billiard Palace, scoring thirty-seven points against twenty-eight made by the scratch man, who was handicapped at forty.
Both players made high run of four, the game running seventy innings. Schiff and Condon are matched for this evening's game.

RITCHIE-WOLGAST MATCH AT MILWAUKEE IS OFF.

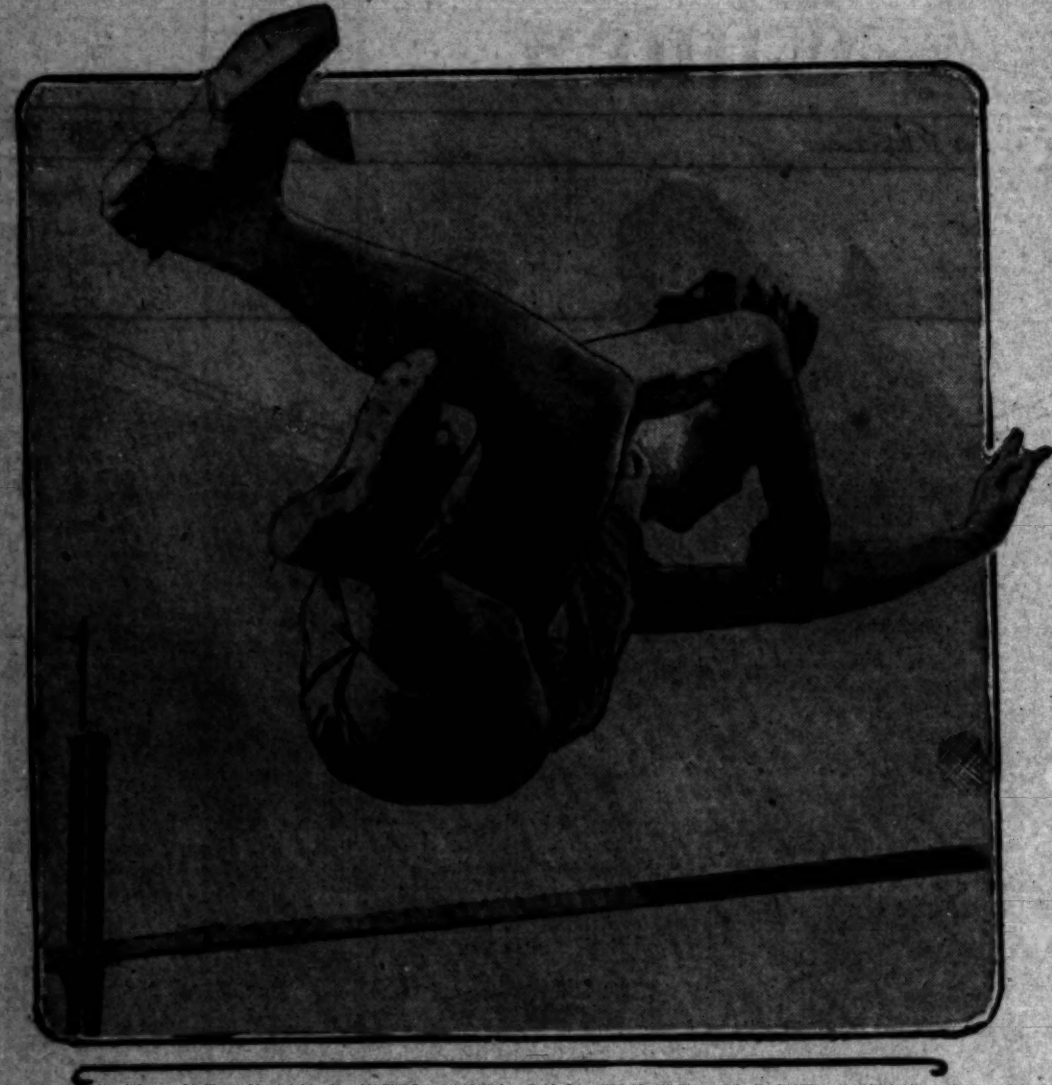

Champion and Manager Nolan at a Loss to Explain It. Wolgast Seems to Have Queered the Match by Demanding More Money—Jones Had Promised Big Guarantee.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Negotiations looking to a ten-round match in Milwaukee between Willie Ritchie and Ad Wolgast the latter part of February or early in March have been called off by Tom S. Andrews, the Wisconsin promoter.
After Ritchie's terms had been accepted and just when it looked as though the deal was entirely closed came the word this afternoon that Wolgast is demanding more of a percentage and that Andrews cannot see his way clear to stage the contest on the terms submitted by the lightweight champion.
Steps looking toward such a match were commenced when Tom Jones was recently in San Francisco. At that time, he declared Wolgast was so anxious for a bout that he would accept any sort of a proposition to make it worth the while of the Californian.
Jones talked of one guarantee and then another until finally, before he left, he insisted that he was prepared to give Ritchie $3500 for his side.
Both Foley and Ritchie say they are at a loss to understand the situation. The fact that Andrews had accepted their terms was proof that he did not consider the demand unreasonable and the cancellation of the bout is evidently due to a higher demand from Wolgast.

SPUDS BUT NO ROAD WORK IN CLABBY'S TRAINING.

JIMMY CLABBY resumed his regular job at Jack Doyle's yesterday, beginning for the second time the work of training for the Sailor Petroskey bout.
In addition to biffing around Al Kaufman, Johnny Schiff and other sparring partners, Jimmy has also added to his staff a manikin built like a patent non-tippable doll that bobs up again after being knocked down. This is supposed to be useful in the way of giving the boxer practice in "stepping around."
Owing to the beautiful skill and ease of his boxing, Clabby is a fine sight to see in training.
His training methods differ in two important particulars from that of nearly every other boxer who ever worked out at Doyle's.
He does no road work, and potatoes, under the ban in most fighters' camps, are the main feature of Jimmy's diet.
It is the theory of most fighters that potatoes contribute to weight without giving much strength. Weight is a greater terror to the average fighter than to an actress. Clabby, however, is very small and slight and does not dread weight.
His idea of road work is that it hurts his legs and causes a deterioration in his footwork. He says that he can get the necessary exercise for his lungs from boxing.
Leach Cross and several other boxers contend that the boxing done in a training camp is harmful rather than beneficial; but Clabby does not think so. He depends, in boxing, very largely on brilliant tricks of his own invention and this ring legende-main requires constant and intricate practice.
BRIDWELL SIGNS WITH FEDERALS.
(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
PORTSMOUTH (O.), Feb. 3.—Mordecai Brown, manager of the St. Louis team of the Federal League, was here tonight for a conference with Al Bridwell of the Chicago National League team. At the end of the conference Brown said that Bridwell had accepted his offer to play with the St. Louis team. The salary offered Bridwell, Brown said, was for a term of years at a substantial increase over what he was getting in Chicago.

A Sensation in Jumpers.

Ben Ward of U.S.C.,

Who is experimenting with a modification of the form that made Horine the world's champion.

The String Bean.

BEN WARD INVENTS A NEW HIGH JUMP FORM.

Lanky Trojan Gets Out and Clears Five Feet, Ten Inches at His Third Night—Tipton Gets First in the Relay Tryouts—Smith Is Hearing Discs in Great Style.

BEN WARD, U.S.C. crack hurdler and hope in the high jump, is back on the job, loaded down with the care of a new high-jumping form. Three years ago Ward was the premier high jumper of the south, with a record of 5 ft. 3 in. During the last two seasons Ward fell down badly, but yesterday the big fellow came out and told Coach Comstock to watch his new form, and proceeded to clear 5 ft. 10 in. in the exhibition. This was a splendid jump, considering that it was Ward's third night out. Coach Comstock is very enthusiastic over Ward's performance, and said: "I expect Ward to break the Southern California record and to clean up the State in the high jump this year. He will have some hard men to beat in McFie and Nichols of California, both good for 5 ft. 2 in. or better. With this new form, Ward will probably clear 5 ft. 3 or 4 in. before the season is over."

HORINE'S STYLE.

Ward went around with an ear-to-ear smile when he cleared 5 ft. 10 in. When asked about his new style, Ward said: "It was greatly improved with the jumping form of Horine, Stanford's world-record holder. I studied his method and decided to try it with a little change. The result has been a big surprise to me. I believe this Horine form will revolutionize high jumping. It makes it possible for the average jumper to increase his jumps from three to five inches. The body rolls so that it will not knock off the bar. I would advise every young high jumper to try this form."

Ward runs up to the standards from the left side and at a sharp angle, he is clearing the bar his body goes over parallel with the bar and with his body rolling towards it. This motion forces the bar back on the standards when the body strikes it. Preparation for the Occidental relay carnival are in full swing at U.S.C. Yesterday afternoon the first tryout for the two-mile relay team was held, with Tipton winning hands down in 2m. 12s. This time was very good considering the condition of the track. Tuesday, Bonshutz, Watkins, Wilfer and Byram finished in the order named. A final tryout will be held later between these six to decide upon the four men for the race. The 440 man will be out Friday to try out for the mile relay team. Franklin and possibly Jackson the Wesleyans are climbing up towards the 124-foot mark, which is first-place work. Comstock's one objection to Smith's work is his tendency to leave the disc over the fence. It looks like Smith will have to seek a larger field for his heaves.

Don Dawson, the former Stanford broad-jump record breaker, was out giving the boys a few pointers. Dawson was a consistent twenty-three-foot man, and Sullivan's selection for the 1913 All-American team. He will be able to give the boys some valuable hints. The remarkable part of Dawson's visit was the fact that a Stanford man could walk across U.S.C. campus without suffering serious injury.

Kelly, Drew and Bergstrom, the star trio, are not out regularly yet. When a fellow can run the high hurdles in 15s. flat, far off a hundred in 23s. or pole vault 12ft. 3in., he doesn't need to practice.

STORM PLAYS HAVOC WITH AUTO ROADS TO MOJAVE.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

MOJAVE, Feb. 3.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Covered with desert mud instead of the Mitchell six driven by Jack Koerner reached Mojave tonight after a fierce battle over the slippery roads of the trackless desert.

Instead of the usual stretches of sand we found mud swamps and dangerous washouts in a country where it seldom rains. Fortunately for us, we had a high-powered, six-cylinder touring car under us; we needed all of the fifty horse power that we could use at times tonight, and especially as we neared Mojave was the engine given a real task. We crossed the long, low wash just before reaching this queen city of the desert, and it was necessary for someone to walk ahead of the car to avoid quicksand.

SOME GOOD ROADS.

From Los Angeles to Palmdale, a distance of 114 miles, the roads are excellent. We met two parties in two Ford cars who had been daring enough to drive through from Los Angeles. The road through Mint Canyon is in first-class shape, and the rains there seem to have improved the highways instead of having hurt them. Except for a hundred yards just outside of Saugus, where a bridge has been washed out, we had no difficulty. Even at the washout a temporary road has been built, and we came through without a mishap. It was after leaving Palmdale that our troubles began. The road to Del Sur has been washed out in many places. It was necessary at times for us to drive into the sagebrush, but we picked out a path that can be followed in safety provided the autoist keeps to the tracks of the Mitchell six. Wide pools of water covered the usual smooth roads, and we were obliged to make long detours.

NEARLY LOST.

Had it not been for the road signs of the Automobile Club of Southern California we would have been lost tonight. Ten miles from Del Sur, after we had driven over the waste in an effort to find smooth going, we were dismayed to find we had hopelessly lost our way. We drove on, however, until we reached a tall white post, which proved to be one of the club signs, and this gave us our bearings. We then determined to remain on the road in spite of the water and we followed the signs into Willow Springs. The road for ten miles between Del Sur and Willow Springs is in bad shape; deep ruts make it necessary for a car to have extra clearance to pass the high centers. However, we discovered that in most instances even where the water is standing on the road the bottom is hard and by rushing our car through we had little difficulty in making fast time.

From Willow Springs to Mojave, fourteen and a half miles, we found

TWO OARSMEN ARE OFF THE LISTS.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) Feb. 3.—Harvard oarsmen will begin active training next week with the loss of two of the strongest candidates for varsity crews. Louis M. Fuller, member of last year's varsity four, has been compelled to forego rowing in order to devote himself to his college courses.

O'CONNOR SIGNS.

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) Feb. 3.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Catcher Patrick F. O'Connor announced today he has signed with the St. Louis Nationals for next season.

Whatever else you may think of Tommy, he shines as a business man. One of the largest made of any of the ring men and they tell me he is a model of sagacity in the conduct of his stores in Calgary. One of Tommy's friends was telling me that his stores are almost across the street from one another in the Canadian city. Tommy dashes downtown and into one of the stores, where he watches all the customers that come in. He never around the store constantly inquiring, "What did he buy? How much did he get?" Then he goes to the telephone and calls up the other store to ask, "What is doing? How much are you selling?"

Then he jams his hat down on his head and tears over to the opposite store to see if they are telling him the truth. On arriving, he makes a hasty survey and dashes to the telephone to call up the store he has just left. Nobody as much as success in either store that Mr. T. Burns does not know all about it.

Added to this business ability, Tommy has the devil's own luck. Everyone knows now that poor Arthur Kelly was about the rawest package of cheese that anyone ever opened. Kelly happened to be in the ring when poor Luther McCarty dropped dead and was proclaimed champion of the world. Tommy made a wad of money out of Kelly.

After the McCarty-Kelly fight, the boxing game was in disfavor in Calgary and anybody who had lost a lot of money on the fight pavilion, which was Tommy's property, but Tommy's luck was to have it burst down within a week and the insurance covered its value.

In the slump of the Calgary boom, Tommy was one of the few to pull out with big profits.

As a mixture of luck and business shrewdness nothing could exceed Tommy's runways with the heavyweight championship.

Winning it from poor old Marvin Hart, who never had any right to it, Tommy made a runaway trip around the world, fighting all the poor boobies and lemons he could find and made a fortune before Jack Johnson could get a man or force him into a $20,000 fight.

TOMMY BURNS LIABLE TO MAKE ANOTHER FORTUNE.

He Will Capitalize His Laughable Fight With Kid Brant Into a Whirlwind Tour of Australia—Rumored that He Intends to Start Another Fight Club Over There—A Keen Business Man.

BY DONALD O'BRIEN.

TOMMY BURNS is packing his clothes into his old trunk preparatory to going back to Australia. This makes it clear why Tommy went down into the Bakerfield oil fields and picked up a fight with a poor boob named Brant.

Everybody laughed at the time, but it would appear that Tommy is now the owner of the only real laugh that anybody was entitled to in the circumstances.

We can all understand now why he fought Brant; also why he bore with such cheerful Christian fortitude the slings and arrows of criticism in connection with that ridiculous fight.

The truth is that Tommy is the P. T. Barnum of the modern ring. Standing around and facing slow starvation, Burns seems to be on the trail of another fortune; he will surely cop an enormous sum of money in Australia before anybody over there really finds out who Kid Brant was.

INFLATING BRANT.

It is scarcely for Tommy's purposes that he has reappeared in the ring and beaten someone. Trust it to Tommy to attend to the glowing reputation of Kid Brant.

Before the steamer gets to Australia, Brant will have become the most illustrious gladiator since Spartacus. His victory over the terrible Brant will become an achievement of prowess and renown.

Had he made his return to the ring in any other place on the globe, Burns never could have gotten away with it; but the scene of his fight with Brant was so remote that he can write his own ticket for it.

There is a report in fight circles that Burns intends to become a partner in the fight club that is starting in opposition to Snowy Baker in Australia.

After the McCarty-Kelly fight, the boxing game was in disfavor in Calgary and anybody who had lost a lot of money on the fight pavilion, which was Tommy's property, but Tommy's luck was to have it burst down within a week and the insurance covered its value.

In the slump of the Calgary boom, Tommy was one of the few to pull out with big profits.

As a mixture of luck and business shrewdness nothing could exceed Tommy's runways with the heavyweight championship.

Winning it from poor old Marvin Hart, who never had any right to it, Tommy made a runaway trip around the world, fighting all the poor boobies and lemons he could find and made a fortune before Jack Johnson could get a man or force him into a $20,000 fight.

Tommy's STORES.

Whatever else you may think of Tommy, he shines as a business man. One of the largest made of any of the ring men and they tell me he is a model of sagacity in the conduct of his stores in Calgary. One of Tommy's friends was telling me that his stores are almost across the street from one another in the Canadian city. Tommy dashes downtown and into one of the stores, where he watches all the customers that come in. He never around the store constantly inquiring, "What did he buy? How much did he get?" Then he goes to the telephone and calls up the other store to ask, "What is doing? How much are you selling?"

FANCY DANCES IN RUSTIC GARB.

Guests at Pasadena Hotel Spend Merry Evening.

Sixteen Dinner Parties Precede the Main Event.

Petition of Socialists Ignored by Commission.

PARADISE, Feb. 4.—Last night was a night of gaiety in Pasadena. Guests at the Hotel Green donned rustic garb and participated in one of the most enjoyable fancy-dance dances of the winter. The Men's Club of All Saints' Episcopal Church presented a vaudeville performance at the parish hall that drew a large attendance and caused the actors and actresses to be fairly deafened with applause.

At the First Congregational Church a mock trial, called "A Canning Conspiracy," was presented under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society amid roars of laughter.

The dance at the Green Hotel was preceded by sixteen dinner parties, the largest of which were given by Robert Neustadt, who entertained a party of eight; Thomas Sprague, twelve guests; C. P. Soper, six; J. S. Carvalho, six; the Caldron Club, nine, and one consisting of the directors of the State company.

The dance was given by two of the guests at the hotel, Miss Gladys Green and Louis L. Sands. They posted their invitation in the lobby of the hotel and it was the effect that all at the hotel were cordially invited to attend, but that none could dance except those who should appear in fancy costumes. The dancing took place in the ballroom in the East building, which was gallantly decorated for the occasion.

The All Saints' Church Men's Club vaudeville was even more enjoyable than that given by the club last year, and that is saying a great deal. Mr. and Mrs. B. Morris presented a sketch called "A Pair of Lunatics." R. Stilson had a humorous song. There were three vocal selections by Otto Mercer, Arthur Reich, "The Lordship, the Burglar," was presented by Frank Hyde and Miss Henrietta Carleman. George Brown sang three songs. George K. Burke had a comic Irish monologue. Roy Davis rendered a solo on the saxophone. The entertainment closed with the old-fashioned English farce, "Freeing a Mother-in-Law." The cast was made up of John T. Sumner, R. J. Scott, Frank Hyde, Miss E. M. Scott and Miss Muriel Stratford. There was a large attendance.

Many prominent residents, including City Commissioner Hamilton, took part in the mock trial at the Congregational Church, which also was largely attended.

MAKES ITS REPLY.
The Board of Education at yesterday's session read the Socialist resolutions filed with the clerk last week asking that henceforward the board have the work done in this manner, and to accomplish its repair work by hiring laborers directly, instead of by letting contracts. As the matter is determined by law, and not left for the board to determine, but little attention was given to it. The clerk was instructed to reply to the Socialist and say that the law provides that whenever a job that is to cost $200, or over, is undertaken, the board is compelled by law to advertise for contracts and that so far as small repair work is concerned it has long been the policy of the board to have the work done in this manner, except in some cases where such a plan would not be desirable.

Most of the time at yesterday's meeting was given to a review of the work that has been accomplished this year in the agricultural and horticultural department of the district. W. S. Kienholz, who has charge of the work, was present, and explained the subject in detail. The members of the board were well pleased with the progress that has been made.

Pomona Makes Extensive Plans for the Entertainment of the Christian Endeavor Meeting in that City.

POMONA, Feb. 3.—The committee from the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor Union of this city who have been arranging for the forthcoming big county convention to be held here on February 10 have the matters connected with the gathering well in hand, and are planning to entertain the delegates in the most comfortable manner possible. The union has 6000 enrolled members, and the coming convention is expected to be the largest ever held of the organization in Southern California.

Miss Nettie McFarland of the Presbyterian society of this city has been chosen chairman of the convention, the honor having come to her because of her enthusiasm, energy and executive ability in Endeavor work. A chorus of 300 voices will lead the singing of the convention, and rehearsals are being regularly held. One of the features of the gathering will be a street parade of hundreds of Endeavorers, and there will be street song services on Saturday, February 21.

Among the prominent speakers who will address the convention are Rev. H. W. Luce of Shantung University, China; General State Secretary Herbert P. Rankin; State Field Secretary Paul C. He quit the fruit business some years ago and has been in the employ of the county for some time. At the time of his death he was in the County Tax Collector's office, and was survived by a widow, two daughters, Mrs. J. H. Wilkinson and Miss Mildred Cowdry, a brother, George Cowdry, of this city, and another brother, George J. M. Cowdry, of Niles, O., and a sister, Mrs. Milliken, of this city.

Mrs. Chamberlain has had general charge of the monthly magazine in Southern California at the Republic by the young citizens.

NO MOONLIGHT WALKERS.
The modern moonlight walkers, dances, and "moonlight" walks, and other affairs of that sort, must be eliminated from the High School grounds, which will be used as a greater number of chaperons present to supervise these affairs. That is the edict of the Board of Education, which was passed at a meeting of the board last night. The matter at some length with members of the faculty. Shows of the suggestion that the board should eliminate the moonlight walks from the grounds, and an effort made to eliminate them from future carnivals and other affairs of that sort. The faculty members assert the dances and shows have had a detrimental effect on many of the pupils and they must go.

Miss Estelle Hadden, for the past ten years, a member of the local library, has been named as city librarian, and has already assumed her duties. She succeeds Miss Carrie Waters in the place, the latter having been transferred to the position of county librarian. The county library is yet to be established, but it is expected that the new library for the first year will have quarters in a room of the city library building.

POWER RATES.
The plea of more than fifty power users in the city that the power rate fixed by the city ordinance be lowered, has been raised against the ordinance by the City Council, met with rebuff at the hands of Mayor J. W. Catick and the Council. A move was then made to raise the rate, and the ordinance was passed at the first of the year makes a heavy raise in the power rates.

WATER FROM MEXICO.
BRAWLEY, Feb. 2.—That most of the water companies of the Imperial valley will be obtaining their water supply direct from Brawley. The drainage of the Colorado within thirty days is the belief expressed by M. W. Conkling, attorney for the Imperial Irrigation district. Mr. Conkling reports that the service afforded by the California Development Company to the water companies near the boundary of the Colorado River is such that they have determined to obtain their water direct from the Colorado. The Brawley Canal in Mexico also will be started at the same time to acquire a right of way through the main canal by the California Development Company to deliver water to the mutual companies within the United States.

The South Pasadena Record has just issued a special paper, which is a city map, and it is a credit not only on this city, but upon E. O. Wickiser, its president and manager. The number includes twenty-four richly-illustrated pages, a striking feature of which are two five-volume pictures of South Pasadena taken from Roy Knabenshue's dirigible balloon. The history of the growth of the city is to be found in the text, and the map is a credit of much value to the community.

Mr. Marcus Groner, head of the Granger Home for Dependent Children, has petitioned the city authorities for a permit to conduct a "children's pet dog" show on the grounds of the Granger Home. The permit has been ordered. Mrs. Groner has a group of interesting little people with her, and the show is a credit to the home report that it is admirably conducted.

Meeting of the book section of the Women's Improvement Association has been resumed, and much interest is being displayed in the work. English Beauty Tells Complexion Secrets.
("Elise" in American Home)

Through a fortunate meeting with an English lady, noted for her radiant complexion, as well as her full meaning of that old adage, "Beauty is but skin deep." She taught me how to remove my muddy old skin, revealing the young and beautiful skin underneath. The process is so simple, harmless and inexpensive, I'm sure you'll be glad to know about it. Just get an ounce of ordinary melleocised wax at any drug store and apply nightly, like cold cream, for a week or so. Every morning in washing off the wax, tiny particles of worn-out cuticle come off, too. The action is so gentle and gradual, there's no discomfort. It's wonderful how fresh and bright the complexion becomes as the old, faded or discolored skin, but all of its defects, as chaps, roughness, freckles, pimples, blotches, blackheads.

I am indebted to the same lady for a remarkable wrinkle-removing formula. Once powder is applied, the wrinkles in half a pint with hazel. Used as a face bath, this is so effective that just one application causes the finer lines to disappear, and soon even the deepest ones go.

Moonlight Waltzes Barred by Board of Education.

SAN BERNARDINO, Feb. 3.—The Supervisors and County Surveyor Bright have taken up the problem of what to do with the flood waters of Lytle Creek. It is the most troublesome stream in the valley and is continuously changing its course.

The stream is so erratic in its course that it is impossible to predict its path. It has been known to flow through the city streets, and has caused much damage to property.

Public Service: City Hall, Courts.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Councilman Langdon yesterday started a move to require that special assessments on properties be noted on tax bills, so that citizens may know the status of their property liabilities.

The Police Commission yesterday revoked the saloon permit of Pagliano & Vergano at No. 615 San Fernando street, and a lively rush will follow by applicants who want to secure the privilege thus placed in the hands of the board to grant anew.

The City Council decided yesterday that the mixed gas must contain not less than 50 per cent of natural gas nor more than 50 per cent. The Board of Public Utilities is likely to fix the natural gas rate today at 53 cents per 1000 cubic feet.

The City Council yesterday postponed final action for one week on the ordinance vacating the stub end of Fifth street as a part of the plans for the proposed new Arcade station.

A suit was authorized by the Board of Supervisors yesterday against a son declaring money on deposit at a local bank to be held in trust for his mother, an inmate of the County Hospital, and to compel him to maintain his old and infirm parent.

Having previously been denied a decree of divorce and finding they still loved one another, a young couple was observed in the divorce court yesterday and at the invitation of the court stated they had become reconciled on account of their young son, now in the custody of his grandfather.

At the City Hall.

MUST SHOW DUE ASSESSMENTS.

PLACE PROPERTY LIABILITIES ON ALL TAX BILLS.

This is Plan Proposed Yesterday by Councilman Langdon and Warmly Indorsed by City Lawmakers. — Would Safeguard Rate-Payers Against Losses.

Councilman Langdon is the father of a new movement to safeguard the property owners of Los Angeles against loss of their properties, or being subjected to considerable expenses, through failure to provide for the payment of assessments upon their properties at the proper time.

This movement is in line with similar attempts that have been put forth during the past year to evolve a scheme whereby property owners may be fully aware of assessments laid against their realty holdings. The fact has been frequently illustrated at the City Hall that in cases where only a few dollars or cents are involved in assessments, property owners have been unaware of the situation until the properties are sold for the lien, and they have been subjected to heavy expenses to remove the cloud on the title.

Councilman Langdon introduced a resolution yesterday that provides for the placing of special assessments, etc., upon the tax bills. This was highly commended by various Councilmen, and the resolution was referred to the Finance Committee for a formal report. There is no doubt it will be recommended. The resolution reads:

Whereas, it appears to this Council that great inconvenience is caused to many taxpayers in the city of Los Angeles by reason of being required to inquire at several different departments of the city to determine the amount and character of delinquent taxes and assessments; and

Whereas, it appears to this Council that it would be greatly to the advantage of the taxpayers that some notice be given by the city with regard to such delinquent taxes and assessments;

Now, therefore, be it resolved: That the City Tax Collector be, and he is hereby, instructed to furnish and deliver with the tax bills rendered by him for taxes, a separate slip showing the amount of delinquent taxes and assessments for public work done on the property described in said tax bills; and

Be it further resolved, that the Board of Public Works and the City Clerk be, and they are hereby, instructed to furnish the City Tax Collector with all necessary information to assist him in the preparation and delivery of said slips in the manner herein provided.

NOW A SCRAMBLE.

SALOON PERMIT REVOKED. The Police Commission is in the way of experiencing a lively siege from persons who would like to hold a saloon permit. It revoked the saloon permit of Pagliano & Vergano, No. 615 San Fernando street, yesterday, and already there are men in the field for the plum that the commission will now have to dispose of.

It is likely that scenes such as were witnessed during the Alexander administration will be repeated. When one vacancy in the list of saloon permits occurred last year there were close to fifty applicants for the privilege and the matter was carried along for weeks before a new permit was granted, it being secured by a hotel on Spring street.

The permit of Pagliano & Vergano was revoked after a hearing of the charges that the place was conducted in a disreputable manner and that Mayor Rose stated at yesterday's session of the board: "I think the charges were fully sustained."

BASIS FOR MIXTURE.

COUNCIL ON GAS SUBJECT. The City Council yesterday, after long argument, set the rate for mixed gas in Los Angeles at not less than 50 per cent of natural gas and not more than 50 per cent of such gas. It also provided that the rates to be set by the Board of Public Utilities shall be only effective until the end of the present fiscal year.

Upon this basis, President Wright of the Board of Public Utilities stated yesterday that it is probable the rate for mixed gas will be 40 cents per 1000 cubic feet. The natural gas rate will be 55 cents. It is probable that the board will take formal action on establishing the rates at its meeting this afternoon.

MORE DEAD.

ONE VOTE IS LACKING. Because it takes six votes to pass the ordinance vacating the stub end of Fifth street, necessary to carry out the plan for the new Arcade Depot, action on the ordinance was postponed for one week yesterday by the City Council. Councilman Bryant has consistently maintained a position of opposition to the vacation through the long campaign to prepare the way for the new station. Yesterday he was joined in this opposition by Councilman Wheeler. This left only five votes for the ordinance, as Councilman McKenzie, who will vote for it, is still confined to his home by illness.

Brink's Permit Revoked. At his own request the restaurant liquor permit of John Brink for No. 808 Spring street was revoked by the Police Commission yesterday. This action is in conformity with Brink's intention to retire from the restaurant business.

More Blocks Closed. The Police Commission yesterday ordered the closing of Main street and further wholesale or retail liquor permits two more blocks within the liquor zone. For two years this edict will stand against Hill street, between Eighth and Ninth streets, 75 per cent. for this order, and Main street, between Second and Third streets.

Property owners filed a petition to close Main street yesterday, and the City Council is expected to take action on it. The petition was referred to Chief of Police Sebastian for checking the street frontage represented.

With Emergency Clause. The City Council suspended the rule yesterday morning and adopted the amendment to the lot-cleaning ordinance, with an emergency clause. This puts the Board of Public Works in a position to carry on an extensive lot-cleaning campaign as soon as a revolving fund is provided.

Fight to Save Trees. The Mayor has been inveigled into the fight over the twin sycamores in Avenue Fifty-four. The fight to save the trees, or twins, has been on for many months, and a temporary injunction was obtained some time ago to preserve the sycamores when seemed that they were certain to fall a prey to the ax.

Now the Mayor will appeal to the Board of Public Works to retain the sycamores if it is possible. He will appear before the board today and ask that the old landmarks be retained wherever possible. Commissioner O'Brien, who is head of the street department, thinks the obstruction to travel should be removed, as several serious accidents have occurred there. Improvement associations, women's clubs, etc., have taken part in the proceedings.

Municipal News Notes. R. W. Richardson and Benjamin P. Harris were approved as special police officers by the Police Commission yesterday. The latter is to serve at the First National Bank.

The Police Commission yesterday granted Ed Schultz permission to move his saloon from No. 216 to No. 218 E. Main street.

The Board of Public Works yesterday ordered the opening of the alley between Eighth, Ninth, Main and Los Angeles streets, and instructed the City Engineer to remove such obstructions as now exist.

The City Council, under a suspension of the rules, yesterday adopted the amendment to the girder-rail ordinance, which has been hanging fire for many weeks. The ordinance provides for the removal of the girder-rail tracks in various places where they are an obstruction to traffic.

The Civil Service Commission has elected Commissioner E. C. Bellows as its president, and Mrs. D. C. McCann as vice-president.

At the Courthouse. The City Council, under a suspension of the rules, yesterday adopted the amendment to the girder-rail ordinance, which has been hanging fire for many weeks.

PAUPER ACT AS CAUSE OF SUIT. Board of Supervisors Authorize Deputy Counsel to Bring Action. Young Couple Becomes Reconciled Because of Young Son—Bundy May Be Sentenced Today.

A story with a sob in it came into the hands of Deputy Counsel Haas yesterday. He was authorized by the Board of Supervisors under the Pauper Act to bring suit against Frank Dugas to declare that a balance of about $1200 to the credit of Dugas in the Security Trust and Savings Bank is held in trust by him for the maintenance of his mother, Margaret Dugas, old and infirm, who has been a patient at the County Hospital for three months.

The facts, according to the complaint filed by Haas yesterday, are that Mrs. Dugas deposited at the bank January 15, 1913, about $5000, which she had transferred to her son, with the understanding that he should care for her. Instead of doing this, it is alleged, he began to spend the money and his mother was sent to the County Hospital.

When this became known to the authorities, a demand was made on Dugas to pay the hospital bill, but he refused to do so. Although Mrs. Dugas is dependent, the county holds that the money is hers. This is the first case under the Pauper Act for the county council.

The suit will be heard by Judge Jackson at 10 o'clock. Meantime, the money in the bank is being held under a restraining order granted by the Presiding Judge McCormick yesterday.

MANY DEPOSITIONS.

READ IN WILL CONTENTS. Depositions covering for a quarter of a century the life of the late Frank H. Holyoke, the wealthy lumberman, whose will is being contested by his son, Sydney, are being read in the jury in Judge Houser's court. The depositions tend to show that Holyoke's mind was affected by his excessive drinking, and having been known to consume from one to two quarts of whiskey daily.

One of his vagaries as told in a deposition was to get out of bed in the middle of the night, attire himself even to his collar and necktie, and descend to the cellar, where he treated himself in solitary grandeur at his private bar.

Mrs. Adelaide Winslow, Holyoke's second wife, told in her deposition how he reviled God and the church, and was particularly vindictive against Episcopalians, stating that the church had forced itself between him and his first wife.

A picturesque witness was Henry B. Cary, who years ago knew Holyoke. A letter from Holyoke to him was introduced in which Holyoke declared he never wanted to see his wife again.

Previous to his charge of his third wife's alleged misconduct with his chauffeur, Cary said that Holyoke always spoke of his wife as a gentleman should.

Holyoke's fortune of $500,000 was bequeathed to his niece, Madeline and Marjorie Holyoke. His wife and sons were cut out with small amounts.

COUPLE REUNITED. WILL GET BACK THEIR CHILD. That absence makes the heart grow fonder was demonstrated yesterday in the case of William S. and Margery L. Farnell. Last October Farnell's divorce suit was denied, and the custody of his son, Harold S., years old, was given to his father, Frank C. Farnell. The decree nearly broke the mother's heart.

Yesterday Judge Monroe, whose memory is marvelous, saw a young couple sitting in the courtroom. He halted a case he was trying and told them to come forward and state what they desired. He had recognized Farnell and his wife and surmised they had become reconciled. This proved the fact and the decree was set aside.

TOO DEMONSTRATIVE. NO WIFE LEFT HOME. Because sufficient corroboration seemed lacking in the divorce suit of Everett W. Thaxter, Judge Wood yesterday called Mrs. Anna L. Thaxter, the wife, who was sitting among the spectators, for her story of the story. The result was that the decree was denied.

Thaxter, a robust man of 40 years, said his wife was a hot live wire, not too demonstrative and they had separated. An agreement was introduced, but proved to be a property investment. The investigation the court showed that Thaxter had gone to Reno and obtained a divorce from Reno and obtained a divorce from Reno and obtained a divorce from Reno.

Why did you marry him on such a short acquaintance? asked the court. Well, I was introduced to him by Mrs. Florence Carey, who thought it would be a good match, was the reply. We talked it over, and I married him.

Mrs. Thaxter is conducting an apartment house in a prominent place in the city. She is a well-to-do woman, and she is a good mother. She is a good mother, and she is a good mother.

SENTENCE DELAYED. BUNNY CASE UP AGAIN TODAY. Louis Bundy, self-confessed slayer of Harold Ziebach, will probably be sentenced to be hanged by Judge Willis tomorrow morning. He was to have been sentenced yesterday, but the matter was postponed to afford Bundy's attorneys time to prepare arguments for a new trial.

Bundy was killed by several men as he entered the courtroom. Deputy Sheriff Aguirre stopped the disturbers. Attorney Dominguez, in defense of Bundy, asked for a new trial on the allegations that the jury received evidence out of court, that the evidence was tampered with, and that the verdict was decided "by lot and chance" and not by argument and ballot; also that the court erred in the instructions to the jury.

Deputy District Attorney Velich is confident he will secure a conviction. "I know of no law or decision of the courts that can save Bundy from the gallows," he said. "The governor cannot commute his sentence legally."

NOT SURE HE'S DEAD. COURT WILL INVESTIGATE. An attempt to clear up a mystery surrounding the disappearance of Frank Hoffman, a cattleman of Ventura, through the appointment of an administrator of his estate, was made in the Probate Court yesterday, because the proof of death was not satisfactory. Judge Rives continued the case a week for defense.

Hoffman was a partner of Jacob Hoffman and left a small estate. R. A. Massey filed a petition for administration of the estate, showing that Hoffman died about September 29, 1913. On that date the horse on which Hoffman was riding was returned without the rider. Some weeks later a body was found in the mountains, which was believed to be the remains of Hoffman. The heirs of his estate, which is valued at $2500, which is represented in the cattle business, are Jacob and Wilhelm Hoffman, the latter living in Germany.

PRISON FOR LIFE. FOR SLAYER OF SWEETHEART. Frank Pillsbury, convicted of the murder of his sweetheart, Beth Gibson, at San Pedro last October, was sentenced yesterday to life imprisonment by Judge Willis.

Pillsbury, according to his confession when he entered a plea of guilty to murder in the second degree, shot and killed the girl because she had refused to go driving with him. At the same time he shot and wounded Charles Stout, another suitor for the hand of Miss Gibson.

Judge Willis listened to his plea and then said: "There have been too many murders. You shot and killed her. You shot because of another man." He then sentenced him. Pillsbury, crying like a baby, was led from the courtroom.

NORTON CIVIL SERVICE CASE. Further arguments in the suit of Mrs. Cora Norton, attacking the constitutionality of the civil service provisions of the charter of the city of Los Angeles, were heard yesterday by Judge Wilbur until this morning, another case taking precedence in the calendar.

Former Judge Bordwell, who is defending the civil service section of the charter, probably will open this morning, and will be followed by W. B. Matthews. The case has been postponed several times at the request of the attorneys for the Evans-Doty commission to enable them to find, if possible, legal authorities favorable to their side.

LOVES FREEDOM MORE.

SO LOSES "GOOD" HUSBAND.

Mrs. Pettit loved her husband, but she loved her freedom more, and because of this her husband, Z. T. Pettit, sued her for divorce, and was granted a decree yesterday.

Pettit was a good husband. He turned over his pay check to his wife and tried to make her happy, but she liked life and gaiety. To provide her with better clothes, he sold the furniture of their flat and gave her half of the proceeds. Still the charm did not work.

Judge Wood subpoenaed Mrs. Pettit, who frankly admitted that, while her husband was good to her, she wanted to be free.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

WINN JUDGMENT. George Lawrence, 70 years old, was struck and injured by a Los Angeles Railway car, and in a $15,000 damage suit tried by Judge Willard yesterday he alleged that the injury to his knee unfitted him to continue as a laborer for a paving company. The court awarded him $900 damages.

HOW IT HAPPENED. A quarrel over a bill of $1.50, which driver No. 225 of the Wells Fargo Express Company tried to collect, resulted in Edgar B. Miller bringing suit against the corporation for damages. He stated that January 17, driver No. 225 knocked out five of his teeth and tore up his coat, the row occurring at a cigar stand at No. 740 South Main street. He asks $150 damages for the teeth; $400 for pain and suffering and $400 for the disfigurement.

COURT NAMES WIDOW. Mrs. Sarah J. Clark, widow of Carlos N. Clark, great appointed administrator of his $134,600 estate by Judge Rives yesterday. Bonds were given in double the amount. Clark died January 18 last. His house at Pasadena was valued at $2500; two sections in Kern county, $20,000; notes secured by mortgages, $100,000. The heirs are Mrs. Clark, Edward C. and Charles H. Clark, sons.

HUSBAND VINDICATED. Because W. F. Davis, a Pullman car employee, flouted with her, as his wife stated, or he picked up her handkerchief, as he said, and they were married after a brief acquaintance. Judge Monroe authorized an investigation which resulted in a clean bill of health for him. This vindicated Davis and threw doubt on Mrs. Davis's story, and because of this the court dismissed the failure to provide case.

LETTER WRITER ARRAIGNED. Hallock Kite, a contractor, living at No. 3916 Dalton avenue, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Williams yesterday on charge of sending an obscene letter to Simon Shufford, his brother-in-law, of Perryville, Mo. The alleged arrest was out of a family quarrel. He was held in $2000 bond.

ALLEGED PATENT INFRINGED. Suit was brought in the United States District Court yesterday by Albert W. Bessey against Edward E. and E. J. McClanahan, alleging that they have infringed on a patent involving a heating apparatus for incubators. Bessey asks for a permanent injunction, an accounting of the profits, and damages of $10,000.

The Best Equipped Tract in All Los Angeles—Chesterfield Square

Frankly, we don't believe there's a tract on the local market today that equals Chesterfield Square in this respect. It's a veritable tract de luxe—has 6 miles of paved streets; sewer, water and gas connected with every lot; sanitary sewers; broad parking; all lots and parking places planted with beautiful trees and palms; all poles set in alleys; streets swept weekly by the city; in a word, we've left not a stone unturned in our efforts to make the improvements in this magnificent subdivision simply mark the final word in modern convenience. We've spent over $250,000 hard cash on improvements alone. And all these improvements are paid for—when you buy at Chesterfield Square you don't assume any bonded indebtedness. The recent heavy rains told the story—no mud for our residents—showed where some of that $250,000 went. We've large lots for $950 and up—or, if you want to move right in,

Hundred Miles of Continuous Flight in Contemplation.

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 4.—(Exclusive Dispatch.) Plans for flying across the Atlantic Ocean in an airplane have been brought to a definite stage, according to an announcement made today by the Aero Club of America. It was said that a giant aeroplane, or rather, in which the trial is to be made, was begun six months ago at Long Island City, N. Y., and was now nearly completed.

John Wainwright is the leader of the trans-Atlantic expedition, and is confident that it is to be attempted. He has been designated by the Aero Club of America as the pilot of the expedition.

A wing spread of eighty feet, the largest aeroplane ever built, will carry a "wing spread" of 100 feet. The engine, of 100 horsepower, will have a speed of 100 miles an hour. The plane will be capable of flying at 100 miles an hour, and will be capable of flying at 100 miles an hour.
